NEW PEACE MOVE BY GERMANY

TRANSPORT AMERICA SINKS AT HER PIER

TRIPLE UP ON LOAN TOTALS

Tomorrow Is "Civilian Draft Day," With Wide Campaign Extending to Homes

A smashing response to President Wilson's appeal to oversubscribe the "Fighting Fourth" Liberty Loan is believed to be under way following the publication of America's answer of "unconditional surrender" to the German peace notes.

It was evident today in loan circles that the tide of indifference to the urgent appeals to "buy to the utmost" had turned, and that the announcement of the beggarly total of but $12,303,000 reported today for the fourteenth day of the campaign was the low water mark of the entire drive.

Today's New England figure proved to be barely one-third of the $36,000,000 total demanded for each of the five remaining days of the campaign.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Because in some instances it was not conclusively shown that Wilson & Co., Inc., "knowingly and willfully" supplied unfit meat for army and navy camps, and in other instances it was not conclusively shown that the meat was actually "unfit for human consumption" the Federal Trade Commission this afternoon dismissed the case against that firm.

TROOPSHIP SINKING A MYSTERY

Seized German Liner May Have Been Scuttled; Troops Escape as She Settles

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Oct. 15.—The U. S. transport America, formerly the German liner Amerika, sank at 7 a. m. today while tied up at her pier here. It was unofficially stated this afternoon that if there was any loss of life the dead probably would not exceed three or four.

Early reports said that between thirty and forty members of the crew were drowned in the boiler room.

The cause of the sinking is not determined. One report is that the seacocks were open, and another has it that the ash chute was not closed. An investigation is under way.

It is said that between 200 and 300 soldiers were on board the transport at the time of the accident, and 1,200 members of the crew. Twenty men were in the sick bay. The vessel has a capacity for 8,000 soldiers.

The transport sank on an even keel. There are eight decks to the ship, the lowest of which is under water. To raise her will be much less difficult than if she had turned on her side.

According to one report, the transport was almost ready for sailing. Coaling had been completed on one side and two hours' work would have

TURKEY BREAKS WITH BERLIN TO SEEK PEACE

Amsterdam, Oct. 15.—Turkey has actually broken with Germany and Austria-Hungary, and officially announced her intention of concluding a separate peace with the entente, according to apparently reliable advices reaching here today. The move, in effect, constitutes a renumeration of the terms of the central alliance.

It is understood that both Berline and Vienna requested Turkey to withhold final action in her new peace move until the present peace negotiations have been concluded, but that no reply has been made to the requests.

The Turkish move was instituted by the new cabinet headed by Tewfik Pasha.

Munich Socialists Call for Abdication of Hohenzollerns

Zurich, Oct. 15.—The first public demand for the abdication of the Kaiser and the Crown Prince has just been made at a German Socialist convention at Munich, Bavaria. Advices from Munich today said that every speaker at the convention called upon the Hohenzollerns to abdicate.

Amsterdam, Oct. 15. — Germany's latest overture to the entente allies has taken the form of a proposal for an agreement to mutually refrain from the bombardment of the larger cities of northern France. The proposal was addressed to the French government through the Swiss government.

In an official statement issued at Berlin today, the German government explained that it was unable to prevent the eastward flight of the population of Valenciennes now threatened with an attack by the allied armies, and that it had asked the French to permit at least a portion of the population of the threatened stronghold to pass through their lines to the west.

Washington, Oct. 15.—President Wilson's reply to Austria's peace proposal will be deferred. The chief executive will wait until his answer to Germany has been considered by Berlin.

The Austrian situation admittedly differs very materially from that of Germany. And diplomats here believe that if the President will make it plain to Austria that she can have advantageous terms of peace by abandoning the German cause that will be done.

Officials who know conditions within the dual empire said today that the demand for peace on any terms is growing there. The hatred of Germany and German methods is increasing. As a result there is a feeling here that when the Austrian government realizes that Germany has been denied peace terms because of her autocratic government and her atrocities on land and sea, it will be ready to take steps to abandon the German cause and make a sincere appeal for peace.

Allied Forces Smashing Ahead on a 35-Mile Front Flanders

Paris, Oct. 15.—Under the active command of King Albert of Belgium, the allied forces in Flanders are driving ahead today on a front of nearly 35 miles. The Germans are burning villages over a wide area as they fall back. It is reported that a British warship has entered Ostend harbor and shelled the defences of that enemy U-boat base. In the Argonne district, the Americans have gained the North bank of the Aire river over a considerable area.

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

Under the impetus of terrific blows on four sectors of the western battle line, the Germans are reeling back over a front of more than 100 miles.

The latest thrusts are delivered on the northern and southern ends of the battle zone, the British, French and Belgians advancing nearly six miles in Flanders while the Americans drove forward on the Meuse river, capturing two more villages and a fortified farm. The attack in Flanders was a shining success. It was delivered over a front of more than 20 miles and unofficial estimates today put the number of prisoners at about 10,000.

FLEET CO-OPERATES.

A British fleet co-operated, shelling and silencing the German batteries on the Belgian coast.

U. S. ARMY IN NEW DRIVE

Bert Ford has heretofore been with Field Marshal Haig's army on the St. Quentin front. He has now been transferred by the International News Service and is with the New England Boys on the American front, northwest of Verdun.

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 15 (Noon)—American troops on the Argonne forest-Meuse front are still fighting their way forward today.

The enemy is directing a harassing fire in the sectors of Beaumont, Waxville and the bois de Caures, east of the Meuse.

There were heavy artillery duels during the night.

Following intense artillery preparation the Americans attacked all along the Argonne Forest-Meuse River front yesterday, carrying all of their objectives on scheduled time. The advance still continues.

The Americans reached St. George's, Landres and St. George's farm. The enemy put up stiff resistance, being under orders to hold the ground at any cost. There was fierce fighting on Hill 256 and on the slopes of Bois Chatillon and amidst the barbed wire defences before Landres, St. George's, St. George's farm and La Tuilerie farm.

The artillery preparation preceding the attack lasted all night. The enemy was literally smothered by the hurricance of steel. All of his front line defence was blasted.

There was much enemy gas and our men had to advance through gruelling machine gunfire.

Last night the enemy was reported moving troops and guns on the road rearwards towards Villers-Devant and Dun.

The new Second American army, under command of General Ballard, got its baptism of fighting as a unit today when an early morning German raid was repulsed on the Argonne forest-Meuse River front. The Second army began operations last Saturday.

in Belgium will render the submarine base at Zeebrugge worthless.

The British are only two miles from the strategic German concentration point at Courtrai and now the last line of German defenses in France is menaced. The Lille-Roubaix line (eighteen miles in width) is being outflanked from both the north and south. The French, sweeping beyond Staden, are now only eighteen miles from the important road junction at Wervins, which is on the Hirson-Guise railway).

All the way across Northern France the Germans are being thrown back upon a 100-mile line between Douai and Asfeld on the Aisne. This line runs along the Scrre and Barres valleys. Steadily and surely the Germans are being thrown out of all the positions which they had prepared to spend the Winter in.

Belgium is being slowly redeemed by force of arms. The allies have now penetrated 27 miles into Belgian territory and the Germans have been forced back 18 miles from Ypres. This battle wrecked city is now free from artillery fire for the first time in four years.

Germans Retreating in Flanders Over a Front of Twenty Miles

By JOHN T. PARKERSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Flanders Front, Oct. 14 (night)—The whole Flanders battle front was aflame with battle tonight, and the Germans were retreating over a zone of twenty miles, burning villages and exploding stores of ammunition as they felt back.

One of the most gigantic "crash" bombardments of the war accompanied the great allied assault this morning with thousands of great guns roaring.

The German batteries along the North Sea coast were completely silenced by the hurricane of steel rained upon them from allied cannon on land and the guns on British warships.

The British, Belgians and French were still going ahead at last reports, while the Germans were sullenly falling back, putting up desperate resistance alone.

The German resistance grew weaker as the allied attack progressed. Much of the material that the Boches had moved up to the front three months ago had to be abandoned or destroyed as they retired. Throughout the day the sky was clouded with great volumes of smoke that arose from the artillery, and tonight it was illuminated with vivid glares from the firing guns.

The German losses throughout the whole fighting have been extremely heavy. Thousands of prisoners were taken, despite the fact that some of the best divisions of the Kaiser's army were on this front.

The Germans, at the opening of the battle, put down a heavy barrage fire barring to stop the infantry earush, but French, British and Belgian guns replied and a tremendous artillery duel developed.

At 2 o'clock tonight it was reported that the Belgians alone had captured 2,000 prisoners, had taken Gitsberg, Beveren and Haagebrooke and were advancing southeast of Roulers.

The British were reported to have taken 1,500 prisoners, eleven field guns and two anti-tank guns.

The towns of Boschmeilh and Wevelghem fell into the hands of the British.

The advance on Menin created a big salient which bulges towards Courtrai.

Belgians, French and Britons Capture German Base at Roulers; Menace Courtrai

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 15.—The second British army that attacked with the Belgians and French on the Flanders front yesterday advanced over four miles, while the Franco-Belgian army advanced nearly five miles, it is officially announced.

The German base of Roulers has been captured. Many villages also fell into the hands of the allies.

The allies are now within two miles of the great German stronghold of Courtrai.

Eight thousand German prisoners were taken.

The new drive was carried out on land and sea and in the air. The British fleet cooperated with the infantry, bombarding the German positions on the coast while the allied armies were attacking on land.

Airplanes supported the assaults at once.

The text of the official report follows:

"The Anglo-Belgian army captured 5,000 prisoners. The second British army advanced seven kilometers in their drive Monday, capturing Rulleghem, Capelle, Ledeghem and Morseele and the outskirts of Menin.

"The Belgians advanced eight kilometers.

"The French occupied Helle, Neuglede, Gitsbere plateau, Beveren, St. Joseph and Roulers.

"The drive was made over a twenty-mile front, and its two chief results were:

"1—The German hold on the North Sea Coast in the Ostend sector is seriously menaced if not actually broken.

"2—The allies have opened a new gateway for their drive southward behind Lille.

Lille, which the Germans have been using as their chief base in the zone just south of the Franco-Belgian frontier, is gradually being pocketed.

The British are within three miles of Denain, which lies immediately north of the Valenciennes-Cambrai railroad.

The British are now within bombarding distance of the Valenciennes-Mons railroad.

WILSON DEFERS NOTE TO AUSTRIA AND MAY OFFER EASIER TERMS

GERMANS HATED IN VIENNA

Military Reverses Charged to Kaiser—Turkey's Surrender Is Expected Soon

Officials said today that the Turkish reply would also be held up for the present. It is believed here that Turkey will surrender unconditionally as soon as the text of the President's reply to Germany reaches Constantinople. In any event officials are today paying very little attention to Turkey and its present status in the war. Reports reaching the State Department from the neutral countries describe the political situation within Austria-Hungary as "very bad." The opposition to the war is constantly increasing there.

It was remarked as "very interesting," that throughout all of the press comment on the war in the German newspapers reaching the State Department, there is a growing disposition to blame the Kaiser for the failure of the war. This comment is touched on in various ways in nearly every German newspaper that reached the State Department.

CENSORS DARE NOT ACT.

When asked why the military censors did not suppress these papers officials who should know declared it is the belief prevailing and manifestly increasing that the censor has not dared to act because of the fear that he would only make the situation worse. Regarding reports of the imminent retirement of Prince Maximilian as imperial chancellor, only neutral press reports on this line have reached the State Department.

Officials today prepared for further German atrocities as soon as the text of President Wilson's decision reaches Berlin. They expect an immediate renewal of submarine warfare on the largest scale possible by the German admiralty. They expect even worse treatment of occupied territory than has been reported in the past. This has been the order of things whenever the German military machine failed to win its point through a campaign of intrigue. Official officials made it emphatically plain today that such action only will make it harder for the Germans when the inevitable end is reached.

NATION INDORSES REPLY.

From every section today came endorsement of the President's position. His declaration that the military experts of the United States and its allies will have the say when any armistice is arranged means much to the men who are fighting the war.

It means that when Germany does really apply for peace she will be compelled to furnish guarantees that will completely protect the victorious allied troops. According to reports that have reached here, the supreme war council at Versailles has adopted a complete program to that end. It comprises plans for holding of important German centres and for rendering the German fleet impotent while peace negotiations are in progress.

NEW CRISIS IN GERMANY.

Diplomatic officials here today said they believed the President's action in telling the German people that one of the great conditions toward peace was a change in the German government would precipitate anew the political crisis in Germany. They say this statement can be depended on to stiffen the attitude of the German Socialists. The very fact that the Kaiser has found it necessary to ask the Socialists to take a real part in the government indicates that it was necessary to placate them to get their support for the latest peace manoeuvre.

That having failed, officials here believe that the Socialists will renew their demands that the government equally be made responsible to the people. Whether they will be able to gain this point is a matter of serious doubt here at present. But ultimately they will, as the German armies continue to suffer serious reverses in the field.

Entente officials were extremely gratified today over the official announcement, made simultaneously with the uttering of President Wilson's decision, that there will be no slowing in the rushing of troops and war materials to the front. That is the sort of language that the Germans can understand, they say.

And when they realize that the promise of the general staff that it will have at least 4,000,000 men in France by June 1 is to be kept, conditions will result that must eventually lead to complete unconditional surrender.

Wilson Note Meets With General Approval, Declares Gov. McCall

Governor McCall today strongly endorsed the decision of President Wilson that the Hohenzollerns must be deposed as masters of Germany. He expressed the opinion that the decision would meet with the hearty approval of the nation, and he cautioned those who would criticise the course of the President to remember that the Chief Executive is more familiar with the international situation than anyone else in the country. The Governor said:

"I think the President's note is a very strong and effective paper and I believe will be generally received with satisfaction. I think it justifies very strongly the tenor of his reply a week ago. Undoubtedly the President keeps in touch with the Allied governments, and just as our military affairs have a single director, so I believe there is a unity of action with regard to questions like this among the different nations concerned.

"It seems to me we should criticise with a good deal of caution action which we may fairly believe to be representative of the heads of the different governments, for they have a full command of the facts, which we do not have, and the patriotism of no one of them can be questioned."

Rush U. S. Destroyer Program to Combat Any U-Boat Warfare

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Anticipating Germany's intention to renew her submarine activities on even a greater scale than heretofore, steps are being taken to speed up America's destroyer program.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, with Admirals Taylor and Griffin, was in conference today with the representatives of all shipyards that are building destroyers for the government. This conference was expected to result in the devising of a speeding-up program that would frustrate any attempt at a successful U-boat drive.

The conference was understood to be the direct outcome of several conversations between Secretary Daniels and Sir Eric Geddes, first lord of the British Admiralty, who upon his arrival in this country recently expressed the belief that Germany was planning renewed naval activities.

The President's "Decision"

The following is the complete text of the reply of President Wilson to Germany:

The unqualified acceptance by the present German government, and by a large majority of the German Reichstag, of the terms laid down by the President of the United States of America in his address to the Congress of the United States on the eighth of January, 1918, and in his subsequent addresses justifies the President in making a frank and direct statement of his decision with regard to the communication of the German government of the eighth and twelfth of October, 1918.

It must be clearly understood that the process of evacuation and the conditions of an armistice are matters which must be left to the judgment and advice of the military advisers of the government of the United States and the allied governments, and the President feels it his duty to say that no arrangement can be accepted by the government of the United States which does not provide absolutely satisfactory safeguards and guarantees of the maintenance of the present military supremacy of the armies of the United States and of the allies in the field. He feels confident that he can safely assume that this will also be the judgment and decision of the allied governments.

STILL PERSIST IN ATROCITIES.

The President feels that it is also his duty to add that neither the government of the United States nor, he is quite sure, the governments with which the government of the United States is associated as belligerent, will consent to consider an armistice so long as the armed forces of Germany continue the illegal and inhumane practices which they still persist in.

At the very time that the German government approaches the government of the United States with proposals of peace its submarines are engaged in sinking passenger ships at sea, and not the ships alone, but the very boats in which their passengers and crews seek to make their way to safety; and in their present onforced withdrawal from Flanders and France the German armies are pursuing a course of wanton destruction which has always been regarded as in direct violation of the rules and practices of civilized warfare. Cities and villages, if not destroyed, are being stripped of all they contain, not only, but often of their very inhabitants.

The nations associated against Germany cannot be expected to agree to a cessation of arms while acts of inhumanity, spoliation, and devastation are being continued which they justly look upon with horror and with burning hearts.

ALL DEPENDS ON GUARANTEES.

It is necessary, also, in order that there may be no possibility of misunderstanding, that the President should very solemnly call the attention of the government of Germany to the language and plain intent of one of the terms of peace which the German government has now accepted. It is contained in the address of the President delivered at Mount Vernon on the Fourth of July last. It is as follows:

"The destruction of every arbitrary power anywhere that can separately, secretly, and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world; or if it cannot be presently destroyed, at least its reduction to virtual impotency." The power which has hitherto controlled the German nation is of the sort here described. It is within the choice of the German nation to alter it. The President's words just quoted naturally constitute a condition precedent to peace, if peace is to come by the action of the German people themselves.

The President feels bound to say that the whole process of peace will, in his judgment, depend upon the definiteness and the satisfactory character of the guarantee which can be given in this fundamental matter. It is indispensable that the governments associated against Germany should know beyond a peradventure with whom they are dealing.

The President will make a separate reply to the royal and imperial government of Austria-Hungary.

Emergency Checks for Soldiers if Pay Is Late

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Emergency pay check books would be given every soldier of the American expeditionary force for use when army pay fails to make connections on schedule time, under a plan proposed to War Department officials today by Representative Sherley of Kentucky, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Representative Sherley has just returned from France, where he investigated many complaints of failure to make prompt payment of wages to the troops. Many of the delays of the past will be eliminated by the new accounting system adopted by Chief of Staff March, Sherley said, but in cases where troops are shifted there seemed no way of absolutely insuring prompt pay.

Each check would be legal tender for use at Y. M. C. A. huts, quartermaster depots, Salvation Army stations and at other than civilian shops.

52 MILLION IN BONDS SOLD BY SCHWAB

New York, Oct. 15—Charles M. Schwab will never be out of a job. Any auctioneer in America would employ him off hand at a fat salary. For Mr. Schwab, who by his deeds has earned the right to be known familiarly as "Charlie," performed the unexampled task of auctioning off $52,000,000 worth of government ships in one hour.

Charlie leaped to his feet at the Fifth Avenue Association's luncheon after Edward N. Hurley of the United States Shipping Board, and others, had spoken of the need of money for building ships.

"I spent five or six months speaking to shipyard workers throughout the United States," said Charlie, addressing with a broad grin, "and I got the wisdom of speaking here today, for the style and language of that experience is not suited for a Fifth avenue audience. I do not mind saying that I feel like giving the germans one good kick to remember this war by."

Then he started in to sell ships. Liberty Bonds being the legal tender, to prove the purchasers' ownership. For a brief time million dollar bids were quashed.

"Now see here," said Charlie, "if we don't get this money today we're going to stop building ships tomorrow—aren't we Hurley?"

"Right-o," shouted Mr. Hurley. And immediately thereafter a $1,000,000 hand was raised, that of Michael Friedsam, for R. Hoe & Co.

"Ataboy!" chortled Charlie delightedly. "Whit's next?"

Along came Lord and Taylor with $250,000, the Harriman National Bank with $1,000,000, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company with $10,000,000, the Allied Milliners with $4,000,000—and so it went, million dollar subscriptions and $10,000 subscriptions raining in; men subscribing additional thousands for their wives.

"I've had one darned good day," grinned Charlie when it was all over.

completed coaling on the other. Forty tons of coal were put into the transport Sunday.

SANK STERN FIRST.

The America went down abruptly, stern end first. Witnesses said that scarcely three minutes elapsed after the big transport first tilted until she was resting on the bottom with all her decks submerged.

It was pointed out that if her sea-cocks had been opened the vessel would have gone down much more slowly.

The sudden sinking of the America recalls the accident to the 11,000-ton troopship, the St. Paul, while lying at her dock last April. The St. Paul sank in very much the same manner. It was first reported that the St. Paul's seacocks had been left open by accident.

An official report made in June said "improper trimming due to structural changes" had caused that vessel to sink. The St. Paul has since been successfully raised and put into commission.

Every conceivable information is in the hands of the authorities of the port, Lieutenant F. S. Lawton announced. Just what effect this will have on determining the cause of the disaster is not known.

WAS SEIZED GERMAN LINER.

It was reported that machinists had been working in the boiler room. Foundations of clothing and supplies had been sent to the pier to be loaded on the vessel. It is not known whether these supplies went down.

The America, formerly the Hamburg-American liner Amerika, displaced 22,622 tons and has a troop carrying capacity of about 2,000 men. The liner was built by Harland & Wolf at Belfast in 1905 and was interned in an American port when the war broke out.

When the United States entered the conflict the Amerika was requisitioned along with the other German and Austrian vessels in American ports. She has been one of the busiest of the transport service. She is 685 feet long and 72 feet beam and formerly hailed from Hamburg.

Save sugar, wheat, meat, labor and fuel

IT is good to know that the best-liked cereal in America helps every boy and girl to save and serve for the winning of the War.

Kellogg's saves wheat, meat and sugar—about the only cereal that needs no sugar.

Flavor and sweetness are developed in the Kellogg Process. Always ready—it saves labor and fuel.

Served with milk, or evaporated milk, it is a perfect food. In Kellogg's you get the protein, starches and other carbohydrates; milk gives you the fats, mineral salts, vitamines and the casein which corresponds to the lean of meat.

Comparing its high nourishment and low cost with other foods, Kellogg's and milk is the most economical food you can buy.

Most people when they say "Corn Flakes" mean "Kellogg's"—the Original—the Flakes that are delicate and thin, with a flavor and crispness all their own.

Don't merely ask for "Corn Flakes." Specify Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes and Look for the signature—W. K. Kellogg.

nouncement that tomorrow would be "Civilian Draft Day" for the purpose of drafting subscriptions from every home and individual not yet enrolled as a bond purchaser. An attempt will be made to canvass every home in the land to urge the purchase, or the duplication, of a Fourth Liberty bond.

A special feature of tomorrow's bond selling in the Washington street "third way" will be a parade of salesmen, accompanied by Cecelia Shook, Italian, French, Italian and Scandinavian women in native costume.

The demonstration will start at Washington and West streets at 11:30 a. m. and, headed by a chorus of forty women from the R. H. White store, will march down Washington street carrying the liberty flags.

The lifting of the ban on outdoor public assemblies by Chairman Henry B. Endicott of the Emergency Committee on Public Health infused the entire loan organization with new enthusiasm and preparations were immediately made to make the remaining five days of the campaign a veritable orgy of bond buying.

At the "cottage with the paint" (Liberty Hall) on Boston Common at noon Governor Charles A. Morse of the Federal Reserve Bank presided at the first open-air rally of the campaign. He introduced Lieutenant-Governor Calvin Coolidge and Mayor Andrew J. Peters, who spoke to a great audience on the duty of buying bonds "to the utmost." Many subscriptions followed the initial mass meeting, at which enthusiasm ran high.

New England's total to date stands at $298,695,000, with slightly more than $900,000 to raise in the five days. Today's report, which follows, embraces 415 of the 834 banks co-operating in the campaign.

NEW ENGLAND FIGURES.

The standing of the States with their totals was:

	14th day	Total
Maine.....	$ 477,000	$ 14,670,000
N. H.....	555,000	10,102,000
Vt.....	121,000	8,117,000
R. I.....	2,310,000	27,850,000
Conn.....	917,000	47,948,000
Mass.....	7,917,000	191,107,000
Totals	$13,553,000	$298,603,000

Boston's subscription for the day was $5,053,000.

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee of New England, in commenting on the situation in the country and on the loan, said:

"The President's unequivocal and straightforward reply filled every New Englander with profound satisfaction. The returns of subscriptions for yesterday are distinctly disappointing, but conditions in Boston are improving so rapidly that the permission of the Public Health authorities for our activities to begin on the Common is very encouraging.

GREAT DIFFICULTIES MET.

"The incredible difficulties which have been placed before the Liberty Loan committee of New England and all of the State, county and local chairmen in carrying out this campaign can scarcely be realized. Now that they are beginning to be removed, we must take every possible advantage of the situation.

"The way is clear, the signal is 'Full steam ahead.' Between now and Saturday night let every man complete his duty to his government and his obligation to mankind by buying Liberty bonds to the limit."

Holbrook, Dunstable, Bolderwood and Pepperhaw were over their quota on early reports for the day.

The South Middlesex district as a whole had passed its quota of $1,000,000 although some of the individual towns were not over on their own quotas. Berkshire County reported that it was over its quota, and only two towns in the district were likely to fail by the end of the week. Essex County is coming strong.

MAINE BANNER TOWNS.

New Maine towns reported over were Old Orchard, Caratunk, Baldwin, Cape Elizabeth, Alna, Burlington, Millinocket, Etna, Freeport, Somerville, Readfield, Howland.

In New Hampshire, Croydon, Bath, Alton, Brookfield, Washington.

In all, 450 cities and towns in New England had gone over the top at noon today, Vermont leading with 148, Maine following with 145, New Hampshire 71, Connecticut 47, Massachusetts 37.

Liberty Trust Company 95 per cent, Commonwealth Pier, First Naval District, 99 per cent. Touraine Company, Downes Lumber Company, 85 per cent, Herbert P. French & Co., 80 per cent., Wm. F. Mayo Company, Stone & Webster, 76 per cent, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, U. S. Navy Fuel Office.

$5,000 CLUB IN AMESBURY.

The Amesbury campaign is getting most effective impetus from the Fighting Fourth $5,000 club of the manufacturers, in co-operation with the Powow River National Bank.

The Federal Trust Company has opened an office for the sale of bonds at Keith's Theatre. The office will be maintained for the balance of the campaign, and the sales are made on any of the instalment plans which have been adopted.

The Boston Clearing House committee in a statement says it feels that the time has come when every customer of every bank in Boston should understand that the campaign is lagging and that failure will result, unless extraordinary means are adopted to complete Boston's quota.

"Each customer of the Boston banks should arrange at once to buy Fourth Liberty Loan bonds to a much greater extent than he has already thought possible, and should borrow the amount of money necessary to effect this purchase. Boston must not be allowed to fall in this emergency."

IT'S GOOD PATRIOTISM.

"It is good patriotism and good business at this time to borrow money at 4½ per cent. to carry a bond bearing interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. Do not be held back by the feeling that you can never pay for these bonds in full. Although it is advisable to hold as far as possible, bonds that have been bought, there is no reason why subscribers should not sell later, if necessary."

"Oversubscription of the quota of New England is a vital stroke at this moment in the great war," is the message which Senator Henry Cabot Lodge sends to New England in a telegram to the Liberty Loan Committee of New England. Senator Lodge says:

"We must have an unconditional surrender and a dictated peace. We must impose our own terms on Germany. We cannot win this war without money. The expenditures of the government for the ensuing year are estimated at $24,000,000,000, which must come one-third from taxes and two-thirds from loans.

"The success of these loans is therefore absolutely necessary. We must work with the highest speed as if the war was to end in six months. We must prepare in every direction as if it was to last for years. Speed and preparation are both imperative. Without the loans we cannot save either. It is therefore vital that we rally in all our strength and subscribe and oversubscribe the 4th Liberty Loan. Buy bonds to the utmost."

Women's Committees for New England Gather in $1,299,000 in Subscriptions

New Hampshire Women's Liberty Loan Committees are making a surprisingly good record under the restrictions imposed by the grip epidemic. In some towns the woman's committee was forced to resort to telephoning and letter writing. Their record from ten counties and eight cities for the first week, as reported to Mrs. Meddon by the State chairman, Mrs. William H. Schofield of Portsmouth, is $355,450; second week, $910,750; total amount reported, $1,299,200.

Reports from Rhode Island on Monday amounted to $142,850; from New York's organization, $42,200; grand total to date, $2,254,400.

Maine reports $48,150 for Monday's work, with a record to date of $2,507,850.

Monday's sales by Massachusetts women added nearly a million dollars. Mrs. Barrett Wendell, State chairman, reports a total of $1,720,850 up to Monday night.

Vermont reports $49,000 for Monday, bringing the total to $3,885,350. Washington County led with $48,700.

MASS MEETING FRIDAY.

As the campaign among Massachusetts women draws near its close, the workers realize more than ever, that despite the splendid work which has been done in the 20 days of encouragement, the fight is not yet won. From every part of the State come reports of the earnestness with which the women are trying to round up the final figures which augurs well for success on Saturday.

The ban has been raised and the postponed mass meeting which was to have been held by the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee in Tremont Temple the opening day of the Loan, will be held at the bandstand on the Common, Friday afternoon at 2:30. The meeting will be under the auspices of State organizations headed by Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, State chairman, including Conference Board of Jewish Women's Organizations, League of Catholic Women, Liberty Loan Committee for Massachusetts Women of Foreign Birth or Descent, Massachusetts Society Colonial Dames, Massachusetts Daughters of American Revolution, Massachusetts Public Interest League of the Anti-Suffrage Association, Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association, Special Aid Society for American Preparedness, Woman's Department National Civic Federation, Women's Christian Temperance Union, Women's State Federation of Clubs, Young Women's Christian Association. Mrs. Barrett Wendell, State chairman, will preside.

MRS. BELMONT INVITED.

The speakers will be of national reputation. Among those invited to speak are Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. The Naval Aviation Band has been engaged, and a chorus of well-trained children's voices will sing the national songs.

The Boston Women's Committee, Mrs. Malcolm Lang chairman, has sold bonds through clubs amounting to $27,500, hotels $218,450, wards $218,100, schools $18,350, Girl Scouts $15,800, outside booths $72,300, Liberty Loan House $210,650, Women's Committee of Foreign Birth or Descent $64,150, stores $1,790,400, individual subscribers $1,000; total, $2,627,750.

Metropolitan Boston has passed the $3,000,000 mark; total figures, $3,198,150. The following cities make up the amount: Arlington $75,000, Belmont $246,900, Medford $416,250, Brookline $651,350, Newton $1,153,000, Chelsea $130,550, Revere $4,800, Wakefield $159,300, Concord $103,000, Lexington $58,600, Melrose $12,000, Woburn $25,850, Winchester $102,100.

Nothing else cleanses the little liver and bowels so effectively. Each 10 cent box of Cascarets contains directions for doses for children and adults of all ages and upwards.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes lightwavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine destroys every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair, growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and lifepreserving properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will spend a few cents for a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—Advertisement.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

SULTAN WAS FIGUREHEAD AS REAL LEADERS PLOTTED INTRIGUE IN ORIENT

and Progress. Talaat, Enver and Djonhal had added to their system a detail that has not figured extensively in American politics—that of assassination and judicial murder.

They had wrested power from the other factions by a deed of violence. This coup d'etat had taken place on January 26, 1913, not quite a year before my arrival.

At that time a political group, headed by the venerable Kiamil Pasha, de Grand Vizier, and Nazim Pasha, as minister of war, controlled the government; they represented a faction known as the "liberal party," which was chiefly distinguished for its enmity to the Young Turks. These men had fought the disastrous Balkan war, and, in January, they had felt themselves compelled to accept the advice of the European powers and surrender Adrianople to Bulgaria.

The Young Turks had been outside the breastworks for about six months looking for an opportunity to return to power.

Talaat and Enver hastily collected about 500 followers and marched to the Sublime Porte, where the ministry was then sitting. Nazim, hearing the uproar, stepped out into the hall. He courageously faced the crowd, a cigarette in his mouth and his hands thrust into his pockets.

"Come, boys," he said, good humoredly, "what's all this noise about? Don't you know that it is interfering with our deliberations?"

The words had hardly left his mouth, when he fell dead. A bullet had pierced a vital spot.

KIAMIL SCARED OUT.

The mob, led by Talaat and Enver, then forced their way into the council chamber. They forced Kiamil, the Grand Vizier, to resign his post by threatening him with the fate that had overtaken Nazim.

As assassination had been the means by which these chieftains had obtained the supreme power, so assassination continued to be the instrument upon which they depended for maintaining their control. Djamal, in addition to his other duties, became military Governor of Constantinople, and in this capacity he had control of the police; in this office he developed all the talents of a Fouche.

The few months that preceded my arrival had been a reign of terror. The Young Turks had destroyed Abdul Hamid's regime only to adopt that Sultan's favorite methods of quieting opposition.

The weakness of the Sultan particularly facilitated the ascendancy of this committee. We must remember that Mohammed V. was not only Sultan but Caliph—not only the temporal ruler, but also head of the Mohammedan church. As religious leader he was an object of veneration to millions of devout Moslems, a fact which would have given a strong man in his position great influence in freeing Turkey from its oppressors.

I presume that even those who had the most kindly feelings toward the Sultan would not have described him as an energetic, masterful man. It is a miracle that the circumstances which fate had forced upon Mohammed had not long since completely destroyed him.

He was a brother of Abdul Hamid—Gladstone's "great assassin," a man who ruled by espionage and bloodshed, and who had no more consideration for his own relatives than for the massacred Armenians.

SULTAN A NONENTITY.

By the time I reached Constantinople the Young Turks completely controlled the Sultan. His state duties consisted merely in performing certain ceremonies, such as receiving ambassadors, and in affixing his signature to such papers as Talaat and his associates placed before him.

Talaat, the leading man in this band of usurpers, really had remarkable personal qualities. Naturally Talaat's life and character proved interesting to me, for I had for years been familiar with the Boss system in my own country, and in Talaat I saw many resemblances to the crude yet able citizens who have so frequently in the past gained power in local and state politics. Talaat's origin was so obscure that there were plenty of stories in circulation concerning it. One account said that he was a Bulgarian gipsy, while another described him as a Pomak—a Pomak being a man of Bulgarian blood whose ancestors, centuries ago, had embraced the Mohammedan faith.

According to this latter explanation, which I think was the true one, this real ruler of the Turkish empire was not a Turk at all. I can personally testify that he cared nothing for Mohammedanism for, like most of the leaders of his party, he scoffed at all religions.

Physically he was a striking figure. His powerful frame, his huge sweeping back and his rocky biceps emphasized that natural mental strength and forcefulness which had made possible his career.

TALAAT'S FEROCIOUS MOODS.

Talaat, like most strong men, had his forbidding, even his ferocious, moods. One day I found him sitting at the usual place, his massive shoulders drawn up, his eyes glowering, his wrists planted on the desk. I always anticipated trouble whenever I found him in this attitude. As I made request after request, Talaat, between his puffs at his cigarette, would answer "No!" "No!" "No!"

I slipped around to his side of the desk.

"I think those wrists are making all the trouble, Your Excellency," I said. "Won't you please take them off the table?"

Talaat's ogre-like face began to crinkle, he threw up his arms, leaned back, and gave a roar of terrific laughter. He relented of treating him so much that he granted every request I made.

He realized the weakness of his position; he had several forces to deal with—the envy of his associates on the revolutionary committee which had backed him, the army, the foreign governments, and the several factions that made up what then passed for public opinion in Turkey. Any of these elements might destroy him, politically and physically.

Though he afterward became the man who was principally responsible for the massacre of hundreds of thousands of Armenians, at this time Talaat maintained the protection that the committee stood for the unionization of all the races in the empire, and for this reason his first cabinet contained an Arab-Christian, a Druse (a Jew by race, but a Mohammedan by religion), a Circassian, an Armenian, and an Egyptian. He made the latter Grand Vizier, the highest post in the government, a position which roughly corresponds to that of Chancellor in the German Empire. The man whom he selected for this office, which in ordinary times was the most dignified and important in the empire, belonged to quite a different order of society from Talaat.

LIKE AMERICAN "BOSS."

Not uncommonly bosses in America select high-class figureheads for mayors or even Governors, men who will give respectability to their faction, yet whom, at the same time, they think that they can control. It was some such motive as this which led Talaat and his associates to elevate Said Halim to the Grand Vizierate. Said Halim was an Egyptian Prince, the cousin of the Khedive of Egypt, a man of great wealth and great culture. He was the heaviest, "campaign contributor," and, indeed, he had largely financed the Young Turks from their earliest days.

Germany's war preparations had for years included the study of internal conditions in other countries. What her emissaries have attempted in France, Italy and even the United States is apparent, and their success in Russia has greatly changed the course of the war. Clearly such a situation as that which prevailed in Turkey in 1913 and 1914 provided an ideal opportunity for manipulations of this kind.

Talaat and his committee needed some foreign power to organize the army and navy, to finance the nation, to help them reconstruct their industrial system, and to protect them against the encroachments of the encircling nations.

Ignorant as they were of foreign statecraft, they needed a skilful adviser to pilot them through all the channels of international intrigue. Where was such a protector to be obtained? Evidently only one of the great European powers could perform this office. Which one should it be?

ENGLAND'S FRIENDSHIP ENDS.

Ten years before Turkey would naturally have appealed to England. But now the Turks regarded England as merely the nation that had despoiled them of Egypt and that had failed to protect Turkey from dismemberment after the Balkan wars. Together with Russia, Great Britain now controlled Persia and thus constituted a constant threat—at least so the Turks believed—against their Asiatic dominions.

England was gradually withdrawing her investments from Turkey. Keen statesmen believed that the task of driving the Turk from Europe was about complete, and the Near Eastern policy of Great Britain hinged on maintaining the organization of the Balkans as it had been determined by the Treaty of Bucharest—a treaty which Turkey refused to regard as binding and which she was determined to upset.

Above all, the Turks feared Russia. In 1914, just as they feared her ever since the days of Peter the Great, Russia was the historic enemy, the nation which had given freedom to Bulgaria and Rumania, which had been most active in dismembering the Ottoman empire, and which regarded herself as the power that was ultimately to possess Constantinople.

The fear of Russia, I cannot too much insist, was the one factor which, above everything else, was forcing Turkey into the arms of Germany. For more than half a century Turkey had regarded England as her surest safeguard against Russian aggression, and now England had become Russia's virtual ally. There was even then a general belief, which the Turkish chieftains shared, that England was actively working that Russia should inherit Constantinople and the Dardanelles.

Though Russia, in 1914, was making no such pretensions, at least openly, the fact that she was crowding Turkey in other directions made it impossible that Talaat and Enver should look for support in that direction. Italy had just seized the last Turkish province in Africa, Tripoli, at that moment was holding Rhodes and other Turkish islands, and was known to cherish aggressive plans in Asia Minor.

ALLIES SHOWED CONTEMPT.

France was the ally of Russia and Great Britain, and was also constantly extending her influence in Syria, to which province, indeed, she had made secret plans for "penetration" with railroads, colonies, and concessions. The personal equation played an important part in the ensuing drama.

The ambassadors of the Triple Entente hardly concealed their contempt for the dominant Turkish politicians and their methods. Sir Louis Mallet, the British ambassador, was a high-minded and cultivated English gentleman; Bompard, the French ambassador, was a similarly charming, honorable Frenchman, and both were personally disqualified from participating in the murderous intrigues which then comprised Turkish politics. Giers, the Russian ambassador, was a proud and mournful diplomat of the old aristocratic regime. He was exceedingly astute, but he treated the young Turks contemptuously, manifested almost a proprietary interest in the country, and seemed to me already to be wielding the knout over this despised government.

It was quite apparent that the three ambassadors of the Entente did not regard the Talaat and Enver regime as permanent, or as particularly worth their while to cultivate. That period on hand for the card dis-

Avoid Spanish Influenza Build Fighting Strength with Father John's Medicine

If you find yourself tired, weak or losing flesh this warning should be heeded promptly. You are in real and very great danger because the germs of this epidemic is specially contagious and in your weakened condition should you come in contact with it you would fall an easy victim.

The commonsense preventive is to begin taking Father John's Medicine at once because the pure food elements of which this old-fashioned, wholesome body-builder is made are easily taken up by the system and turned into vital, resisting energy; giving you fighting strength to ward off the influenza germ. The gentle laxative effect of Father John's Medicine drives out impurities.

Remember, Father John's Medicine is not a "dope." It is compounded

ARMY TO REVISE DRAFT PHYSICAL STANDARDS

A revision of the standards of physical examination will shortly be issued.

The changes are few, and are mainly with a view to making available the greater number of registrants having minor defects, transferring them for special or limited service. Thus, when industrial and essential needs permit, defects may be corrected when convenient; meanwhile, the army will have the benefit of the services of the man.

A Wartime Recipe for Gray Hair

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a small box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extra to buy. Dissolved it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use come in each box.

You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $5000 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy, it will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger.

Does Such an American Exist?

Can there be any American who is not doing all he can to help win the war? Who pretends to believe that we could have kept out?

Who whines or growls about the little sacrifice he is asked to make?

Who gets panicstricken and thinks that it would be better to compromise with the Hun and listens to the serpent whisperings of German propaganda?

If such an American exists let him realize what Germany has done to Russia, which gave in and negotiated a cowardly peace.

There is only one thing for us all today and that is war to the bitter end—war until the Hun is utterly and completely destroyed.

For those who cannot fight, LIBERTY BONDS are the best possible weapons against the Hun.

THEATRES ARE FREE TO OPEN SUNDAY

Regular Performances to Begin Monday; a Further Decrease in the Epidemic

The ban on theatre-going, effective for th past two weeks, has been lifted, to take effect next Saturday at midnight, it was officially announced today, following a conference between Health Commissioner Woodward and Mayor Peters. This will permit the usual Sunday concerts in all the theatres, it was stated, and they will be allowed to throw open their doors for the regular performances beginning Monday.

Boston deaths from the disease dropped from forty yesterday to 32 today in the three hours ending at noon. Influenza victims numbered 23 today and nine pneumonia victims. This compared with 32 from influenza and eight from pneumonia the previous day was regarded by health officials as a still more hopeful sign of the rapid decrease of the epidemic.

Distribution of Dr. Leary's serum by the State Board of Health began today. Local health boards greatly handicapped the work of distribution by failing to specify the amounts of serum needed, it was stated at the offices of the State Board of Health. The distribution places will be fixed in the various cities and towns by the health boards.

Continued improvement everywhere and no serious condition anywhere was the summing up of the state situation at the office of the State Board of Health. Influenza is on the run, health officials declared, and will soon be utterly routed.

Gas masks for New York policemen and heavy chiffon veils for women are the latest measures being taken in New York to prevent the germ from getting a further foothold there. The masks are obligatory for the policemen, but a matter of choice for the women, although strongly recommended by Health Commissioner Copeland of that city.

Owing to the influenza epidemic the Boston Philatelic Society announces that the regular October meeting of the society will be omitted.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

1,250 LIVES IS FOREST FIRE TOLL

By International News Service.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 15.—Based on reports from the twenty-nine towns either partly or entirely wiped out by the five separate forest fires which raged in Minnesota and Wisconsin, the death toll today is estimated at 1,250 persons. Bodies actually recovered total 332.

Besides the bodies that have been brought to Duluth, Moose Lake, Atkin and other cities and towns, many others are being found in the pits and cellars to which frantic refugees turned in vain for shelter from the onrushing destruction.

While families have been found to have perished, either burned to death or suffocated by smoke and gas, in these improvised shelters.

The territory over which the fire has swept is a lifeless waste—crops, stock, houses, barns all having been destroyed by the flames.

At least another day, officials say, will be necessary before an accurate estimate of dead, injured and property loss can be given.

IRREGULARITY AND WEAKNESS IN MARKET

Price Changes Smaller in Boston; Telephone Loses ⅜ at 107½, Elevated Up ⅜ to 74⅜

The New York market opened irregular. After showing weakness it rallied and became irregular again. Coppers, motors and some steel stocks were strong. Oil stocks were weak.

Mexican Petroleum lost 4⅜ at 124⅜ before rallying to 127¼; Texas Company was off 3⅜ at 196, then rallied to 191½; Sinclair Oil dropped 1 to 34⅜.

U. S. Steel opened at 110¼, after selling at 110⅝; it receded to 108⅝, off 1, selling later at 109, off ⅝; Bethlehem B gained ¼ at 73¾, and Crucible rose 1¼ to 87¼, afterward selling at 86½. Steel Foundries gained 1¼ at 85¼. Baldwin Locomotive was fractionally higher at 79.

Marine preferred lost 1 at 118¾, and rose 1¼ at 120¾; the common stock advanced 1⅝ to 31⅝.

Anaconda sold 71⅝, up ⅛; Inspiration 55, up ⅝, and Utah Copper ⅝, to 47⅝. American Smelting sold 81¼, up 1⅝.

Reading opened up ⅝, at 91¼, after dipping to 90¾; it sold 90⅝; Union Pacific lost 1⅜, at 121⅝; Southern Railway ⅝, at 23⅝, and Southern Pacific 1⅜, at 90.

Studebaker sold at 49½, up ¼, after losing 1⅛, at 48¾; American Can lost ⅜, at 45; Central Leather ¼, at 67⅜.

Good Progress in Classification of Men Under General Crowder's Plan

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 15.—A rapid pace is being set in the speeding-up contest organized by Provost Marshal General Crowder for the classification of men of the ages 19 and 20 and 31 to 36 inclusive, who registered on Sept. 12.

Since yesterday the number of local boards in the various States that have completed classification and finished the physical examination of all Class 1 men has been doubled, General Crowder announced today. Altogether eighty-three boards have gone "over the top," in this respect Iowa leading with fifteen of its boards credited with the completion of the task.

Indiana and Wisconsin, with 124 and 104 local boards under their respective jurisdiction, have completed 60 per cent. of the entire work of classification. All of the 112 local boards of Iowa and the twenty-two boards of Rhode Island have completed the classification of 30 per cent. of their registrants.

For the entire country the showing, according to latest returns, was: Total number of local boards in the United States, 4,548; number of local boards completing 30 per cent. of classification, 2,272; 60 per cent., 1,851; 90 per cent., 1,330; complete classification, 555; number competing 30 per cent. of the physical examination of registrants placed in Class 1, 285; 60 per cent., 158; 90 per cent., 83.

QUINCY SOLDIER CITED FOR HEROISM

Private Carroll P. Foss, a Wollaston boy with the Medical Corps, 101st Infantry, has been cited for "marked gallantry and meritorious service" in action about Chateau Thierry on August 31 by Major-General C. R. Edwards.

Private Foss, who is twenty-five years old, is the son of Mrs. L. C. Foss of No. 107 Taylor street. He graduated from Kent's Hill Seminary in 1911. He enlisted last July and in September went overseas.

Although Foss does not mention what deed of bravery brought him the citation, of the fighting around Chateau Thierry he says:

"Our bombardment had kept them in their dugouts and we were on them before they could get out. One fellow captured the first sixteen all himself. After we got them started it was much easier going, and by noon we had gone about three kilometers and had taken 2,000 prisoners."

Again, in speaking of the fighting farther on, he says:

"In a few minutes they began to come out, but they had their hands over their heads, waving anything white they could find. Gee, it was funny. They were some glad to be taken prisoner, same as all the rest we had captured.

"Next morning the Boches had run so far we couldn't keep up with them. Bunches of prisoners kept coming back and we hear that the Americans got about 17,000. We camped that night about twenty kilometers from where we started, and next morning had Boche oatmeal for breakfast."

WORCESTER MEN ARE CITED FOR BRAVERY

Worcester, Oct. 15.—Major Thomas F. Foley and Private John W. Roy are two Worcester men who have been cited for bravery and given crosses of honor in France. Major Foley won his cross when he was commanding officer of the Emmet Guards, Worcester's crack company of the 101st Infantry. Private Roy is a member of H Company, 104th Infantry. He won his decoration for extraordinary heroism in action in the Belleau woods delivering messages through shell fire.

HEADACHE FROM A COLD? LISTEN!

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.—Advertisement.

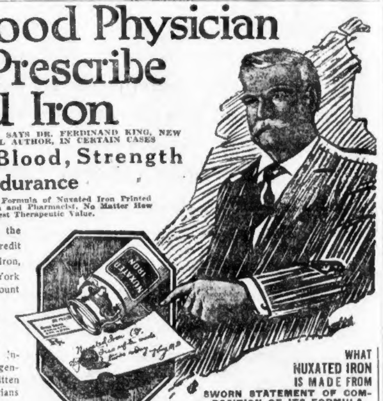
Every Good Physician Ought to Prescribe Nuxated Iron

OR SOME FORM OF ORGANIC IRON, SAYS DR. FERDINAND KING, NEW YORK PHYSICIAN AND MEDICAL AUTHOR, IN CERTAIN CASES

To Create Red Blood, Strength and Endurance

Says Sworn Statement of Composition of Formula of Nuxated Iron Printed Below Should Convince Every Physician and Pharmacist, No Matter How Skeptical, That It Is a Product of Greatest Therapeutic Value.



Both the medical profession and the public at large should give great credit to the manufacturers of Nuxated Iron, says Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and medical author, on account of their voluntary act in authorizing the widespread publication of the sworn statement of the composition of the Nuxated Iron formula in newspapers and magazines for the information of the public and for their generous offer to send a signed typewritten copy of the exact formula to all physicians and others interested.

Dr. King further says: "A careful examination of this valuable formula should not only convince the three million people, whom it is estimated are now using it annually in America alone, that they have made no mistake in selecting it, but it should also convince every physician and pharmacist that it is a product of greatest therapeutic value which the general practitioner can prescribe almost daily in his practice with remarkable benefit to his patients, and one which, in my opinion, every good physician should at times prescribe if he wants to do the greatest possible good to those who consult him. There is, I believe, no form of iron which is so valuable as that particular special specific standard which is used in Nuxated Iron, and if a physician has a patient whose condition is one that requires iron, I would most earnestly suggest that no matter what other forms of iron he may prescribe without success, that he should try that particular form used in Nuxated Iron.

"There can be no strong, sturdy iron men, nor beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women, without iron. Pallor means anaemia. Anaemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anaemic men and women is pale; the flesh flabby, the muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails and they often become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your vim and vigor to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and prescribed it for my patients, and I can truthfully say that it excels any preparation I have ever used for building up delicate, nervous, run-down folks and increasing the red-blood corpuscles, thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind.

"If you feel tired in the mornings; restless at night; if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality; go to your family doctor and have him take a specimen of your blood and examine it, and if it shows iron deficiency, get him to give you a prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Do this so as to be sure that you do not get hold of some of the numerous forms of metallic iron preparations on the market, which may do you more harm than good. Or if you do not want to go to this trouble, purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron and see for yourself that the words Nuxated Iron appear on the package. Not Nux and Iron, nor any other form of iron other than Nuxated Iron.

WHAT NUXATED IRON IS MADE FROM

SWORN STATEMENT OF COMPOSITION OF ITS FORMULA

Ask your doctor or druggist or any Pharmaceutical Chemist or Professor of Therapeutics in any Medical College in regard to this formula.

A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires it. It is as follows: Iron Peptonate (Special Specific Standard), Quantity given below. Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P., Cascarine Bitter, Magnesium Carbonate, Po. Ginger U. S. P., Oil Cassia Cinnamon U. S. P., Calcium Carbonate Precip. U. S. P. Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost, but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of men.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron," by the Dae Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians and which is now being used by over three million people annually, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

BAKER TO SPEED UP PLANS FOR GREAT ARMY

Prepared to Furnish Supplies Which Will Be Required by the Troops

Washington, Oct. 15.—"We are going right ahead with the augmentation of the army and providing it with adequate supplies."

This statement was made by Secretary of War Baker after he, Secretary Lansing, Secretary Daniels and Colonel House had been with the President, discussing the reply to Germany's last note.

On the table while Secretary Baker made his significant remarks was a piece of one of the shells dropped in Paris by the German 74-mile gun. It was enclosed in a handsome case, the whole being a gift to the Secretary from the French government. It had a grim enough look about it.

Secretary Baker's interview was the first he has had with the press in general since his return from Europe. He made some new announcements. One of these was that the influenza had not attacked the American army in France. He said, however, that there had been some difficulty with respect to the troops arriving from the United States. Many of these had arrived sick on the transports, but a way had been found to isolate them and there was no spread of the disease among the rest of the expeditionary forces.

Mr. Baker also said that the conditions of the hospitals in France and England were excellent and that many marvels of surgery had been performed. There was ample floor and bed space, so that the wounded were receiving the best attention known to an advanced modern science.

For the first time Mr. Baker was prepared to announce that the docking facilities were up to the mark.

"There are actually now," he said, "free berths."

This was cited to show that the congestion had delayed the embarkation of troops had disappeared.

American troops are fighting in large masses with the French and the English besides holding a very large sector of their own. All, however, are under the orders of General Foch. Much stress was laid by Mr. Baker on the fact that the Americans were everywhere where there was any fighting.

"When I was in France in March," he said, "there were scarcely more than three or four hundred thousand American troops, and they were doing defensive duty. Now there are about 1,900,000 there, as stated by General March and they are everywhere on the aggressive."

Mr. Baker also emphasized the fact that there is the utmost harmony among the allies and the American troops, and that all are acting with the one single definite purpose to win the war.

LEGAL ADVICE TO SOLDIERS AT DEVENS

Judge-Advocate's Office to Protect Interests of Men in the Service

Camp Devens, Ayer, Oct. 15.—Legal advice on matters of personal concern will be given to all soldiers quartered in this cantonment who consult the division judge advocate, according to an order issued by Major-General McCain. The advice given will be strictly confidential, and every effort made to be helpful.

The order directs attention to the fact that the attaches of the judge advocate's office will on request write out wills, powers of attorney and other legal documents, that it is one of the duties of the office of the division judge advocate to advise and assist in these matters, and every soldier of the command is importuned to feel free to make such use of these advantages as may be necessary.

President Wilson on March 8 this year signed the Soldiers and Sailors' Relief Act, which completely protects every man absent in service from having any unfair advantage taken of his absence by suing him in court and getting judgment by default, by ejecting his family for non-payment of rent, by foreclosing mortgages or instalment contracts, or by sale of property for non-payment of taxes.

ONLY TOO WILLING TO HELP.

This law is apparently not known to many soldiers, judging from talk among them, and the division judge advocate will be only too willing to go into all of its ramifications on request.

The attention of soldiers is called to the fact also that the Judge Advocate-General, co-operating with the American Bar Association and the Red Cross, has enlisted civilian lawyers in every community in the United States to act as volunteer counsel to the dependents of soldiers in the field.

These lawyers, it is stated, will endeavor to see that no advantage is taken of any soldier, or his dependents, in the courts during the absence in service of the soldier. This is a patriotic service, and is rendered entirely without the payment of a fee.

All soldiers in camp whose cases are considered meritorious will be referred by the division judge advocate to such civilian counsel in the soldier's home town through the cantonment agent of the Red Cross.

Boxing is the burning subject of debate evenings in the various barracks. This is due to the big boxing bouts to be pulled off in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Wednesday night. The camp boxing team will on that evening have a set-to with the sailors from the Hingham Naval Station. The main event will be the exhibition bout between Benny Leonard and his brother Charlie, camp boxing instructor. It is hoped that the "battle royal" will be staged.

GRENADE EXHIBITION.

Lieutenant Manuel Wiechers of the 74th Infantry and Lieutenant Bruce J. Higginbotham of the 26th Infantry have been assigned for duty as students at the United States Bomb School, Lakehurst, N. J.

Captain Joseph M. Hill of the 151st Depot Brigade, has been granted leave of absence for twenty days, and Lieutenant LeRoy Forster of the same command has been given ten days' vacation.

A grenade throwing exhibition will be given tomorrow at the Grenade Field. It is expected that Major-General McCain and staff will attend.

Daily practice games are indulged in by the camp football team in preparation for its game with the Army Aviation team at Springfield Saturday. There will be forty airplanes used to take the aviators to that city. Aviators there are warned ahead of time not to get excited and cut loose with rifles on the belief that the Boches are raiding the place and about to drop bombs.

2 New England Men Win Distinguished Service Cross

Two New England men appear today on the list of those who have been signally honored by the government with distinguished Service Crosses for valor in the face of extreme danger.

They are First Lieutenant Chas. C. Conaty of No. 33 Hodges avenue, Taunton, and Private Donald J. Emery of No. 15 Prospect street, Newport, Vermont.

First Lieutenant Charles C. Conaty, Chaplain 118th Infantry, was cited for extraordinary heroism in action near Clesrancy, France, July 15. Without regard for his personal safety, Chaplain Conaty, under intense shell fire, following the attack of his troops from Crezancy in the Marne River, attended the wounded and throughout the night searched and assisted in carrying wounded to the dressing station.

Private Percival Donald J. Emery, medical detachment, Company L, 117th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Dickenbush, France, August 12. Displaying an absolute disregard of danger in caring for wounded under shell and rifle fire and a continuous exhibition under trying conditions, his courageous example was inspiring to his comrades.

'RADIO' RIBBONS REPLACED BY 'NAVY' BAND

Latter Insignia Will Be Worn in All Branches from Now on

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Oct. 15.—The hat ribbons which bear the words "U. S. Naval Radio School" are soon to be but a memory at the Radio School. Orders have been issued for the discontinuance of their use and the substitution of ribbons bearing the words "U. S. Navy."

The "U. S. Navy" ribbons will be worn by all branches of the service. Yeowomen will wear the new ribbons instead of the "Naval Reserve" ribbons as heretofore.

The Hostess House which heretofore had been open only from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. for Radio students and their friends, will be open until 10 p. m. hereafter. The later evening hour were put into effect for the purpose of providing further evening recreation for the students. Music, reading and study rooms are provided for all.

More than $150,000 in Liberty bonds has been subscribed by the Radio school. This is nearly triple the amount subscribed during the Third Liberty Loan.

ARREST ALLEGED BOGUS OFFICER ON 2 CHARGES

"Captain" Asa R. Shreeves Wanted in Two Cities for Robbery and Forgery

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 15.—"Captain" Asa R. Shreeves is in Rochester. He is wanted there to explain the loss of $200 worth of jewelry, etc., by a young woman to whom he is alleged to have made ardent love.

When Rochester has finished with him, Syracuse wants to interview "Capt." Shreeves. Daniel Kuntzach, a clothier, wishes to question him concerning a check for $25.

Last Tuesday evening a man wearing the uniform of a United States Army captain examined some silk shirts in Kuntzach's store. He selected one for $3, and paid for it with a $25 check made out to "Captain R. Boyce" and drawn on the Syracuse Trust Company by "Captain" A. R. Shreeves, U. S. A.

The trust company officials later declared no "Captain" Shreeves had an account with them.

A young woman in a Rochester hotel introduced a man with whom she had become acquainted as her "brother." The "brother" was very devoted to her, but when he disappeared she missed jewelry and money to the amount of $200 or $300.

"Captain" Shreeves was finally located in Buffalo. He claimed Toledo, O., as his home and said he was on leave of absence from Camp Hancock, Atlanta, Ga.

750 BOSTON COLLEGE STUDENTS INDUCTED

Seven hundred and fifty members of the students' army training corps were inducted into the service today at Boston College. Induction was directed by Colonel John S. Parke, commander of the corps. Students will not be assigned to barracks until the influenza epidemic has passed.

A flag raising featured the opening exercises. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Peters, Former Governor Walsh, Mayor Childs of Newton and President Lyons of Boston College.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE BOSTON

October 11, 1918.

To The Citizens of Massachusetts:

The Nation has called upon us again to assist her in the furnishing of funds to back up our boys in the service.

Massachusetts, throughout her entire history one of the foremost States in assisting the government, has not, during this war, dimmed in any degree the fame that has been hers through all the years.

Our boys, among the first to land in France, have distinguished themselves with great valor.

We at home have also done our part, and I am confident we shall continue to do so.

The nearest duty at hand now lies in a generous subscription to Liberty Bonds.

Its importance cannot be over-estimated, and I most urgently urge upon all people of Massachusetts that they subscribe without stint, that Massachusetts may maintain her place in the foremost rank, and that the boys on the battle line fighting for us may realize that we have something beside words with which to support them at home.

APPALLING CONDITIONS ARE REVEALED IN NEWTON GRIP WAR

Health Board Chairman Under Fire; Women Clean Up Nonantum

Because of the heavy death toll in Nonantum village, Newton, from grip, Dr. Francis G. Curtis, chairman of the board of health, is the storm centre of widespread criticism.

Of the 149 deaths in Newton from grip and allied ailments during the present epidemic, more than one-third were in that district. Nonantum is one of sixteen villages in Newton and contains about one-eighth of the city population of 43,000.

Many wealthy women of high social standing, whose attention was called to the grave situation in Nonantum found deplorable conditions existing. In some of the homes when they went to assist the people. During the first two days of work these women found such filthy conditions in thirty-five houses that they reported them to the Board of Health.

CURTIS GETS BUSY.

Dr. Curtis immediately got busy and had inspections of the houses made and ordered them cleaned. Not only that, but he found time to send inspectors around in the following days to see that the orders of the Board of Health had been complied with. His slowness in acting until he was forced to by the patriotic women, who did all sorts of menial work in order to stamp out the epidemic, is now being investigated by Mayor E. O. Childs.

Filthiness of the worst sort was found in some of the homes, according to the volunteer women workers, in addition to bedclothing that had not been washed for months, excrement of children was found on kitchen and bathroom floors. These women workers, many of them from the best families in the Newtons, are incensed at the Board of Health on account of some of the conditions they found. They learned that these unsanitary conditions existed long before the grip epidemic started.

FINALLY DID GOOD WORK.

Just what action will be taken by the authorities is not certain. Some of them are averse to doing anything strenuous at the present time, fearing that it will have an adverse effect upon the fight against the epidemic in the Newtons. While most of them admit that Dr. Curtis did not act at Nonantum until forced by women of the Newton Food Committee of the Committee on Public Safety, they declare he did good work afterward.

Some idea of what the spread of the disease in the district resulted in may be gleaned from the records of undertaker William Thomas, who had charge of fifty funerals there. For a time the people were dying like leaves falling from trees. Nearly every family in the section was afflicted by the disease. In one house 20 persons were sick. These included several relatives who were visiting. In the fight to stamp out the epidemic Dr. A. A. Amendola smashed windows in some of the houses to force the inmates to permit fresh air to enter.

WOMEN LEAD FIGHT.

To Miss Dorothy Stockin, of Watertown, social worker for Stearns School centre, Nonantum, is due the credit for awakening the women of Newton to the appalling situation that existed in the district. Although not on duty at the time because of the fact that the school was closed, she returned to find how the people were getting on. What she found was so shocking that she called up Dr. Curtis of the Board of Health and offered her services. He told her that if he desired her help he would call on her. She asked him what he was doing to stamp out the disease in Nonantum and he told her that he was going to have some posters distributed.

"Dr. Curtis was so little concerned," said Miss Stockin, "that I communicated with some of the women of the Newton Food Committee of the Newton Committee on Public Safety. A special meeting was called and I told the women of the frightful conditions I had found. They asked me what I thought of opening a canteen in the Stearns School and I told them I thought it a good idea, so the school was thrown open and the women and I went to work to fight the epidemic.

CLEANED UP HOUSES.

"We found terrible conditions in some of the homes. The first day I worked I even scrubbed a floor in one house in a court off Adams street. The other women rallied to my support in wonderful style and accomplished great things. We got them in the neighborhood to scrub floors. The women who worked with me went right into the houses and did all kinds of labor.

"They made beds, washed woodwork, dressed children, tended the sick, in fact they did whatever had to be done. The first day eleven families were visited and helped, the second twenty-eight, the third thirty-five, the fourth eighteen, etc. Children were taken from some of the homes and boarded out so that they would not contract the disease. One day seven houses were ordered cleaned by the Board of Health because of what the women found. Another day twenty-eight places were cleaned by order of the Board of Health as the result of our complaints. We even found excrement of children on kitchen and bathroom floors and learned that the children were in the habit of doing such things prior to the epidemic. Such conditions should never have been permitted to exist by the Board of Health.

"As soon as the women got busy and notified the Board of Health about the filthy conditions in the homes Dr. Curtis sent inspectors to see that the places were cleaned and he also sent them the following days to see that the orders had been complied with. In some of the homes we found bed clothing that had not been changed for weeks and that was sent to a laundry for cleansing to help wipe out the epidemic.

GOOD FOOD PROVIDED.

"Fifteen women worked in the kitchen of the Stearns School preparing food and so many more women visited the homes of the people to help them. In addition several women loaned their automobiles to carry the workers about and conserve time, or to do anything else that might assist.

"Fred H. Tucker, a member of the Newton Public Safety Committee, who had become interested in the situation, secured the services of Michael Farina, who went among his countrymen and learned that they did not take the food offered by the women because it was cooked in the American style. We then had Mr. Farina teach the women how to cook Italian dishes and everything was all right again. In many of the homes it was practically impossible for anyone to cook as nearly everybody was sick or helping care for somebody else.

"This food, consisting of soups, beef broth, gruels, milk, bread and butter, was sent out once a day on an auto truck. The people paid when able and food was given to those who could not afford to pay. Another automobile was used to carry clothing to the laundry daily.

"A few days after the women began their work to wipe out the epidemic a special meeting of the Newton Public Safety Committee was called at which conditions in Nonantum were discussed. What happened at that meeting I know only from hearsay. I do know that the Board of Health got busy after the women took hold of the situation."

PRAISES CURTIS' ASSOCIATES.

Miss Stockin said that the Board of Health was very slow until the women had shown them the way and the necessity for quick, decisive action. She had high praise for the work done by Alfred M. Russell and William H. Hambleton, the other members of the Board of Health.

At the second meeting of the Newton Public Safety Committee referred to by Miss Stockin many of the most prominent men and women in Newton were present. The meeting was presided over by William F. Garcelon, a prominent Boston attorney and chairman of the Newton Committee on Public Safety. Dr. A. A. Amendola, George Angier, Mayor Childs, Michael Farina, Mrs. R. C. Henry, head of the food committee in Nonantum; C. E. Kelsey, chairman of the Newton Red Cross; Alfred Marbonald, secretary of the committee; Alfred Russell of the Board of Health, Fred H. Tucker, chairman of the food committee of the Public Safety Committee; General J. C. Wylie, chief of the Newton Constabulary, and Dr. Curtis. Conditions were freely discussed at this meeting, and the Board of Health was practically told to get busy and do things.

One of the speakers stated that if the Board of Health couldn't cope with the Nonantum situation it was time a new Board of Health came into existence. The work of the women was praised and the canteen ordered continued. Kenelm Winslow, principal of the Stearns School, was appointed to oversee the work of the women. From that time on the school became the official centre of the fight on the disease in that district.

CRITICISM CONTINUES.

A salutary effect resulted from this meeting. The Board of Health began to show signs of life, and from that time on there was no complaint. They worked hard and faithfully. But criticism of Dr. Curtis has not ceased.

Mayor Childs said to a Boston AMERICAN reporter: "Nine or two persons most criticised Dr. Curtis to me. I am not in a position just now to state whether Dr. Curtis did his full duty. I am looking into the matter. There is no question that the women found conditions in Nonantum that shouldn't exist, and that existed before the epidemic started. I think the Board of Health was a little asleep, but I don't know as they were any worse than those in some other places. I do know that when I got after them they got busy, and I got after them as soon as the conditions were brought to my attention."

The Mayor said that it was true, as charged by the women, that the Board of Health did practically nothing to wipe out the disease at Nonantum until they got busy and showed the board the way.

Chairman Garcelon of the Public Safety Committee declined to talk for publication about the alleged negligence of Dr. Curtis.

CURTIS DECLINES INTERVIEW.

Mr. Tucker, another member, who attended the special meeting at which the Nonantum situation was discussed, said in a Boston AMERICAN reporter: "I have a feeling that it would do no good to stir up this matter. Dr. Curtis has been doing a great deal of work lately in clearing up the conditions that existed." Mr. Tucker admitted that in his opinion the Board was slow to act at the beginning.

Dr. Curtis declined to make a statement regarding the criticism of the Newton women when approached by a Boston AMERICAN reporter. "I don't care to say anything about it," he said.

Several members of the Public Safety Committe criticised Dr. Curtis but declined to speak for publication. They declared he was actively and unduly discriminating and was plainly at fault in the Nonantum situation. They predicted stormy days ahead for him.

WOMEN VOLUNTEERS.

The women who have been prosecuting food for the sick at the Stearns School are: Mrs. Ralph C. Henry, Mrs. Frederick White, Miss Angier, Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Winslow, Miss Tracy, Mrs. Fred H. Tucker, Mrs. Ryan, Miss Jessie B. Kenrick, Miss Fredericks and Miss Doris Lougee.

Among the women volunteers who have done washing, scrubbing and caring for the children and the sick are: Mrs. Hathaway, Mrs. Ashley, Mrs. Dodge, Miss Mason, Miss Tracy, Miss Chapman, Mrs. Alfred M. Russell, Mrs. Burbeank, Mrs. Newhall, Mrs. Eleanor Hussey, Miss Hayward, Miss Hall, Miss Mrs. Wakefield, Mrs. J. L. Cutler and Miss Lucinda Sherman.

Flowers have been brought into the homes of the sick by a committee under the charge of Mrs. Frank C. Day, the collection of laundry and clothing and the washing and ironing by a committee headed by Mrs. Charles Dawson.

Aides to take nurses and other workers wherever their services were needed have been provided by Mrs. Irene Webster, Miss Gertrude Robinson, Stephen Merrell, William F. Merrill, Miss Frederick and Mrs. G. W. Bridges.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

PAMELA listened with an interest which bordered upon excitement.

"You are sure?" she exclaimed.

"Absolutely!" he replied. "My notification is official."

"So you think if we dined with you, the atmosphere tonight would be different?" she observed, with a sudden attempt at the recondite.

Lutchester looked into her eyes without flinching. Pamela, to her annoyance, was worsted in the momentary duel.

"We cannot always choose our atmosphere," he reminded her.

"Mademoiselle Sonia is perhaps connected with the regulation of the munition supplies from America?"

"Mademoiselle Sonia," Lutchester asserted, "is an old friend of mine. Apart from that, it was my business to talk to her."

"Your business?"

With Gravity

Lutchester assented with perfect gravity.

"Within a day or two," he said, "now, if you made a point of it, I could explain a great deal."

Pamela threw herself into a chair almost irritably.

"You have the cult of being mysterious, Mr. Lutchester," she declared. "To be quite frank with you, you seem to be the queerest mixture of any man I ever knew."

"It is the fault of circumstances," he regretted. "If I am sometimes compelled to present myself to you in an unfavorable light. Those circumstances are passing. You will soon begin to value me at my true worth."

"We had half promised," Pamela murmured, "to go out with Mr. Fischer this evening."

"The more reason for my intervention," Lutchester observed. "Fischer is not a fit person for you to associate with."

She laughed curiously.

"People who saw you at the roof-garden last night might say that you were scarcely a judge," Pamela retorted.

"People who did not know the circumstances might have considered me guilty of an indiscretion," Lutchester admitted, "but they would have been entirely wrong. On the other hand, your friend Fischer is a would-be murderer, a liar, and is at the present moment engaged in intrigues which are a most immoral compound of duplicity and cunning."

"I shall begin to think," Pamela murmured, "that you don't like Mr. Fischer!"

"I detest him heartily," Lutchester confessed.

"I find him singularly interesting," Pamela announced, sitting up in her chair.

"I dare say you do," Lutchester replied. "Women are always bad judges of our sex. All the same, you are not going to marry him."

"How do you know he wants to marry me?" Pamela demanded.

"Instinct!"

"And what do you mean by saying that I am not going to marry him?"

"Because," Lutchester announced, "you are going to marry some one else."

Pamela rose to her feet. There was a little spot of color in her cheeks.

"Am I indeed!" she exclaimed. "And whom, pray?"

"That I will tell you at Washington," Lutchester promised.

"You know his name, then?"

"I know him intimately," was the cool reply. "What about our dinner tonight?"

"We are going to dine with Mr. Fischer," Pamela decided.

"I really don't think so," Lutchester objected. "For one thing, Mr. Fischer will probably have to attend the police court again later on."

"What about?"

"For having hired a famous murderer to try and get rid of me," Lutchester explained suavely.

"Do you really believe that?" Pamela scoffed. "Why should he want to get rid of you? What harm can you do him?"

Trying to Find Out

"I am trying to find out," Lutchester replied grimly. "Still, since you ask the question, the pocket-book which is on its way to Germany, and which I picked up when Nikasti was taken ill—"

"Oh, yes, I know all about that!" Pamela interrupted. "That is the one thing that always sets me thinking about you. What did you do it for? How did you know what it meant to me?"

"Divination, I imagine," Lutchester answered, "or perhaps I was thinking what it might mean to Mr. Fischer."

She looked at him and her face was a study in mixed expressions. Her forehead was a little knitted, her eyes almost strained in their desire to read him; her lips were petulant.

"Dear me, what a puzzle you are!" she exclaimed. "All the same, I am going to wait for Mr. Fischer. It doesn't matter whether one dines or sups. I suppose he will get away from the police court sometime or other."

"But anyway," he protested, "you've heard all that Mr. Fischer has to say. Now I, on the other hand, haven't shown you my hand yet."

"Heard all that Mr. Fischer has to say?" she repeated.

"Certainly! Wasn't he here for several hours with you this afternoon? Didn't he promise you an alliance with Germany against Japan, if you could persuade certain people at Washington to change their tone and attitude towards the export of munitions?"

"Ha!" she declared, trying to keep a certain agitation from her tone, "is mere bluff."

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—Advertisement.

Famous Women in War Work

HERE are two famous women whose activities in war work are both far-reaching and practical. Lady Carson, at the right, wife of Sir Edward Carson, does not confine herself to any special work. She is noted for her perpetual industry, working wherever British soldiers need her. Mrs. Josephus Daniels is a leading worker in American war camps. The wife of the American Secretary of the Navy is shown in the blue uniform and black tricorne hat of the W. W. C. A., which she wears on her visits to camp hostess houses.

MR. BLAIR shook his head. "Entertain no false hopes, Mrs. Durant. No one can help you. My car is outside. I will take you to Mrs. Brooks now."

Escorted by Mr. Ames, who kept repeating to himself in a furious mental whisper, "Why isn't she a man?" Dr. Kemp's protege walked to the limousine and rode in silence to the Brooks home.

Mr. Blair found Elaine alone. Mrs. Brooks had gone to a Red Cross meeting, happily ignorant of the heartrending cause of the delayed honeymoon. To her daughter Mr. Blair was almost affectionate in greeting.

"Oh, you've thought it over—and still you're of the same opinion?"

"I gave you my answer last night," she said.

"Elaine," said Mr. Blair, "Mrs. Durant is in the car. She has something to say to you. I have asked her if say it because I felt that it might help you to forgive and forget—now that you have so feebly resolved to play the game of life from an exalted standpoint."

"Mrs. Durant? Why Mrs. Durant?"

"She will explain better than I can."

He walked to the car, motioned Bob to remain, and, leaving the Secret Service man outside, himself went with Mrs. Durant to Elaine.

"Is there any danger of interruption here?" he said. Elaine for answer led the way to the library and shut the doors that opened from it. "Won't you be seated? I am mystified. But who wouldn't be?"

"Mrs. Durant has something to say to you," said Mr. Blair. "She is under no compulsion to say it, but she wants to undo as far as she can the wrong she has done."

"Wrong?" cried Elaine, still unable to grasp the intimation conveyed by the speaker.

"Yes, wrong," broke in Mrs. Durant, facing the girl who had so often been an attentive hostess to her. "Mr. Ames—I can no longer call you Elaine—I have betrayed you—I have betrayed you. I have profited by your trust and abused your confidence."

Blotchy Skin

Many a time you have looked into the mirror and wished that your skin would be like other people's—how you know, "without a blemish." Wash D. D. D., the lotion of healing oils, over your pimples or blotches tonight—and wake up in the morning to find them gone! A 35c bottle will give you relief. Why don't you try D. D. D. today?

D.D.D. The Liquid Wash

For the first time there flashed across the young wife's perplexed brain the reason for this remarkable outburst from the usually complacent and dignified ardor.

"Don't judge me too harshly," she went on. "I swear to you I knew nothing of the use to which my information was put."

"It was Mrs. Durant," interrupted Mr. Blair, "who took the photograph of my friend, Jack Wells, and also purloined the paper from the drawer over there."

"You did that?" cried Elaine, you, a guest at our house"—

"I did that," answered Mrs. Durant, dropping her eyes before the burning gaze of Elaine.

"I was jealous. I had promised myself revenge."

"For what?"

"We won't go into that," declared the miserable woman. "I have told you all you need to know. I ask your forgiveness—yours and your mother's."

Elaine turned to Mr. Blair. "Did you say that these acts of Mrs. Durant were turned to unpatriotic ends?"

"These acts," answered Bob's uncle, "were used by Dr. Kemp to furnish aid and comfort to the enemy."

"Then this woman is a spy?" Elaine's voice rang with the indignation of a true American.

"No, no," cried Mrs. Durant.

"You ask my forgiveness?" continued Elaine scornfully. "I could forgive you for any harm you had done to me or to my husband, but when you betray my country I hold that you are past mercy." She moved away as though anxious to be out of the room. "Is that all, Mr. Blair?"

"One moment." He went to the door and motioned to his nephew. Bob Ames came up the steps, torn between hope and fear, but Mr. Blair gave no indication of Elaine's attitude.

Fruit for bottling should be gathered in dry weather. It should then be placed in clean, dry bottles filled with sugar syrup, corked down and tied with string. Place the bottles in a deep pan with cold water reaching up to the necks of the bottles. Place the pan on the fire, cover with a lid, and as soon as the water boils lift off the fire and stand on the side for five minutes. Leave till cold. See that the corks are tight; then dip in hot bottle wax.

A New Principle in Complexion Treatment

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permanent, sticky, sliding which interferes with normal circulation and makes the skin sallow and pasty. There is an application—a perfected cream which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin, as well as unhealthy matter in the pores, so that it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, different from cosmetics. The ferina is flesh created and healthy result is a perfectly natural and healthy round complexion. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

The object is to tighten the skin, which of wrinkles as it goes out the lines. A face bath, remarkably effective in this directing, may be made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel.—Advertisement.

GOING into the dining room he had a talk with Mr. Miller. The result of this conference was that the kindly neighbor got his car out of the shed where he had left it, and drove over to his own home, returning later with his wife, a buxom woman of forty.

To her Butler explained conditions in a way that made her consider him a very remarkable young man. He was a type as foreign to her as Elizabeth had seemed to Samuel Miller.

The matron liked John Butler's manner and looks, and promised to carry out his requests. There were that Elizabeth be looked after carefully and that Mrs. Chapin be waited on and comforted until the brother of one and the son of the other should arrive on the scene.

"I may be called away," Butler explained briefly before asking Mrs. Miller to perform these neighborly offices.

She, dully impressed by the importance of the occasion, and feeling a sense of superiority that she—instead of any other neighbor—had been summoned to this house at this time, took the position assigned her with pleasure that showed itself in volubility.

"Now don't you bother about poor Martha or about the girl," she said. "I'll look after them both. I didn't know till the other day that it was Douglas Wade's sister that was staying here. I knew there was some young person here, and I caught a glimpse of her several times when I was passing and stopped to talk to Martha. But she said something about a cousin being with her, and I thought the young person I saw walking across the fields one day was she. But I guess likely the cousin's gone, hasn't she?"

"Yes, she's gone," Butler admitted, tersely. "Now if you will make a cup of coffee, I will take it to Miss Wade, as she had no supper at all. But first I will go and see if she is awake."

Ignoring the woman's inquisitive look, he tiptoed upstairs and, when his gentle tap on Mrs. Chapin's door brought forth no answer, he turned the knob noiselessly and looked in.

What he saw satisfied him, and he nodded approvingly.

"Mrs. Chapin is asleep, and so is Miss Wade," he announced to Mrs. Miller three minutes later. "We must try to keep the house as quiet as we can."

"Aren't you going to have anything to eat yourself?" the matron asked. "Suppose I make you and my husband a nice cup of hot coffee."

"Thank you," Butler replied. "That will be most kind."

He certainly was a stylish young man, the woman mused as she made a pot of coffee in Martha Chapin's immaculate kitchen. Well, this was certainly an interesting situation, and she was glad that she, Emma Miller, had been the person sent for tonight.

From what her husband had told her on the way over here, she knew that a mystery was connected with Amos Chapin's death. It was not often that she had a chance to be present at a real mystery.

So much interested was she that when, an hour later, her husband advised her to go into the spare bedroom and lie down for a while, she went reluctantly and was careful to leave the door of the spare room open that no sound from below might escape her ears.

"Entente Cordiale"

Most readers understand the meaning of the words "entente cordiale," but it is rather difficult to make a translation that expresses the exact meaning of the original French. Prince Bismarck gave the following explanation when his daughter asked him what the entente cordiale really was:

"Well," he said, "it is not so easy to define exactly. It means a cordial understanding, but it also has a little different significance. For example, you were in the courtyard this morning when I came from the garden with Nero; Diana was in the yard, gnawing a large bone. My Nero saw her and ran to seize the bone. Then there was a little fight, until I struck them a few sharp blows with my cane. After that the bone lay in the middle of the court, while both dogs stood off some distance and looked eagerly at it. Each dog, in fact, was anxious to kees the other away as he was afraid of my cane, and therefore neither ventured to seize it. You see, that is what they call in diplomatic circles an entente cordiale."

DAZZLING ARRAY OF SHOWS IS HEADED HERE

Boston Awakes From Theatrical Slumber Monday With Many New Attractions

Boston will awake from its long coma next Monday.

According to present plans it will then resume its place on the list of American cities, after having for over three weeks given a splendid and unrivalled exhibition of a provincial town in the Straits Settlement, with whatever activities such a town might boast extinguished.

After a hiatus of some twenty-five nights, during which it was not able to view even the once-a-week show allowed to the smallest of small towns, Boston will come to life with a dazzling array of theatrical attractions. No doubt they will be all the more welcome after the enforced absence of such things.

First nighters will be given a choice of productions of variety and excellence. The past three weeks having been made memorable for them, the managers plan to make next Monday night memorable for Boston's theatre-going public.

MARGARET ANGLIN COMING.

At the present moment the wires are hot with messages between the office of Manager Rich and New York. Mr. Rich, unable at the present time to announce definitely just what attractions will open the Hollis, Tremont and Colonial theatres, is nevertheless able to foretell that they will be brand new to Boston and productions which Boston is clamoring to see.

It is regarded as probable that Margaret Anglin in "Billeted" will open at one of his houses, and that another will house a brand new musical comedy of big proportions. Mr. Rich will announce his attractions as soon as they are definitely settled.

Manager Wright of the Park Square Theatre is in a similar position, and his announcement, too, is delayed.

The Copley Theatre will present "The Chinese Puzzle," a new drama now enjoying a run in London, and the occasion will be made notable by the appearance of Henry Jewett in the role of actor for the first time since he has been in command of the house.

"Chu Chin Chow," the monumental musical extravaganza of the Orient, which had a long run in New York, will open the Shubert Theatre.

"Maytime," playing at the Shubert when the sudden and unexpected closing of the playhouses took place, will reopen at the Majestic Theatre.

"FRIENDLY ENEMIES" REMAINS.

"Friendly Enemies" will continue to hand out laughs at the Plymouth Theatre, and "Oh, Lady! Lady!" will resume her charming and tuneful career at Ye Wilbur.

Robert Mantell will begin his season of Shakespeare and stage classics at the Boston Opera House. Instead of "Richelieu" for the entire first week as the tragedian had planned, however, a variety of bills will be given. According to the new plans "Richelieu" will be played only three times the first week and once the second week.

Mr. Mantell's first week bill is as follows: Monday, "Richelieu;" Tuesday, "Hamlet;" Wednesday matinee, "Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday night, "Richelieu;" Thursday, "Macbeth;" Friday, "Hamlet;" Saturday matinee, "Merchant of Venice;" Saturday night, "Richelieu."

New bills will be seen at the vaudeville, burlesque and movie houses. At the last named, especially, the enforced hiatus in the season has resulted in a number of new productions piling up, ready for release next Monday.

THOUSANDS ARE SAVING PEACH STONES

Peace rumors must not hold back the Liberty Loan and the same thing applies to the collection of peach stones for gas masks for the soldiers.

Thousands of people are now saving the stones, with the pits of plums and prunes and nut shells, and they are being collected and sent to a factory where they are made into charcoal to go into gas masks.

The Boston AMERICAN is willing to help and will send a service button to each boy and girl who wishes to join the Boston AMERICAN Peach Stone Brigade, which now numbers about 3,000 boys and girls.

ELI ELEVEN MAY PLAY HARVARD

Old Classic Tops Spicy Set of Football Games Next Month for War Charities Fund

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Harvard vs. Yale, Army vs. Navy, Princeton vs. Pennsylvania. Those are only three of a series of monstrous gridiron conflicts carded to be played for the benefit of the war charities fund next month.

The contests, and a lot of others, were suggested at a recent conference of government and football authorities, held in New York, it has just been learned, and have already secured the sanction of army and navy heads.

The committee named to complete all arrangements consists of William Langford of Trinity; William Roper and Park Davis of Princeton, and Herbert Pratt of Amherst. They form a splendid quartet of gridiron champions.

These men are to meet in New York at an early date, possibly late this week, it is reported, and then it is expected to be definitely known just what's going to be what; the exact contests and dates.

MAROONS TO COME EAST.

The big games are to be played on university gridirons and the advance tip is that if the Harvard-Yale contest materializes it will be staged at the Stadium. Chicago University is to battle its stiffest Conference foe. It is planned, with the winner of that game coming East for a post-season game with the victor of the Harvard-Yale encounter.

In line with this good news for football rooters is Harvard's announcement that not only will military football be played at Cambridge this Fall, but the army officials at the university have sanctioned the formation of crews and cross-country squads.

The plan, according to Captain Carroll Dunham, student adjutant of Harvard's S. A. T. C., is to limit the early play to inter-battalion games. This will merely serve as a form of recreation for the student soldiers.

Later on Harvard will play some real games, probably meeting Radio School, Boston College and Camp Devens among others. Then the battle with Yale for the benefit of the war charities fund, if present rosy plans do not go astray.

TO COMPLETE FALL BILL.

"About one and a half hours daily will be given each man who desires to practice," states Captain Dunham. "Games will be played on Saturday afternoons, and, unless conditions from the present outlook, will not be a part of Harvard's athletic schedule.

A similar program will be followed in reference to rowing and cross-country, although the competition probably will not extend greatly beside the Harvard unit. The naval unit is also to organize a football team and crew.

Captain Dunham was to confer with Major Fred W. Moore, athletic manager and treasurer of Harvard A. A. today, when plans for the Fall season will be discussed. The Harvard authorities are ready to aid the government's patriotic program to the limit.

Charley Linehan talked of as a possible S. A. T. C. coach, providing he gains admission to the Harvard unit, is in the Stillman Infirmary suffering from influenza.

Billy Papke, the new middleweight champion, has notified Promoter Jack Gleason of the Auditorium, S. C. San Francisco, that he will start for the coast as soon as he receives transportation. Papke is signed to meet Stanley Ketchell in a 20-round bout at Gleason's club, Nov. 26th.

(Note—Billy would have fared better if transportation hadn't been sent, as Ketchell put the K. O. on him in 11 rounds.)

Charlie (Twin) Miller of Boston beat Young Corbett III of Philadelphia in six rounds at the Broadway A. C. of Philadelphia, last night. (It seems there have been quite a few Corbetts and Millers representing Boston in the fight game.)

B. C. AND BROWN MAY PLAY GAME HERE SATURDA

Boston College and Brown will meet on the gridiron Saturday, provided the Providence health authorities will lift the quarantine which has been placed on the Rhode Island college. Both B. C. and Brown athletic heads are willing to stage the game and get the season under way. Both outfits have put in quite a bit of practice, but need some real competition to get the teams into shape.

The game if listed will be played here, either at the college gridiron on University Heights or at Braves Field. Boston College opened today and many new candidates are expected to report for the squad.

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

This is the ninth chapter of a series which Mr. Corbett is writing concerning his great fight with James J. Jeffries in Coney Island. In this series of articles Mr. Corbett reveals to the public, for the first time, some of the dramatic and humorous features of that fight which, up to this time, were known only to his intimates.

It was 10:30 on the night of May 11, 1900, when a bell jangled—and my fight with "Big Jim" Jeffries in Coney Island, N. Y., was on.

As I faced the man who had been my sparring partner only three years before, and who now had risen to ranking as the greatest human fighting machine of all time, I felt within me the same confidence that I had known all through my training camp days. Jeff always was a powerful fellow —always looked like a Samson. And that night he was in the best aspects condition of his life.

And I was "spotting" Jeff a matter of forty-eight pounds. But that fact didn't worry me. I had "spotted" John L. Sullivan about to that amount of poundage—yet I had won. Weight is an asset in favor of a heavyweight fighter. But speed and boxing skill count greatly, too, in determining the outcome of a battle. And in both of those, and allied by them I figured I might sweep my way through to victory.

My career embraced many fights, and I remember the outstanding incidents of practically every one of them. But my recollection covering the Sullivan, the Fitzsimmons and the first Jeffries contest is most vivid. I could give from memory a fairly good description of every minute of action in that Coney Island clash with "Big Jim." But it seems to me that the better plan would be to quote the details of all but three rounds from newspaper clippings. Those three rounds—the third, the seventeenth and the twenty-third, are rounds that I can tell about even better than the newspaper boys. And I'll tell RAW what happened; I FELT it and LIVED it. And there is a big difference.

The round-by-round description published in the New York Herald Leaf hand, guaranteed by us. Alfred Peats Co. 119 Kneeland.

Gasoline Saving and the Sunday Autoists

The Boston AMERICAN is glad and proud of the cheerful unanimity with which the owners of pleasure automobiles have given up Sunday driving at the request of the Fuel Administration. It is one more evidence of the whole-hearted devotion to the nation's cause which is leading almost all of us to feel that it is "not ours to reason why" when it is a question of measures which in the opinion of those in authority will help to win the war. We could far better afford to give up the use of gasoline for pleasure driving altogether than to run the risk of stinting in the least the supply available for military uses, and especially for the all-important aviation service.

Nevertheless we are glad that the Fuel Administration has decided to abandon this "rough and ready" method of saving gasoline as soon as a better and more equitable measure can be worked out to take its place. The one merit of the Sunday abstinence plan was that it could be put in operation instantly, without trouble or expense to the government. In a sudden emergency this is merit enough, but in view of the rapid increase of our army and the still more rapid expansion of the aviation department it is almost certain that a permanent plan of checking civilian consumption of gasoline will have to be adopted, and for anything but a brief emergency the Sunday saving order has many serious drawbacks, one of the chief of which is the fact that the sacrifices it requires are very unequally distributed.

There can be no reasonable doubt that so far as the high-powered pleasure cars, which are the heaviest consumers of gasoline for other than business purposes, are concerned, the saving is comparatively small. They are owned by wealthy people of leisure who may be depended upon, when Sunday riding is cut out, to make up for it by extra riding on week-days. The gainers are the hotels where they spend their week-ends instead of going and returning on Sundays as before. The heavy losers are the road-houses and the wayside gasoline supply stations, for to many of them their Sunday business has meant the whole difference between running at a profit and running at a loss.

The case of the light-powered "flivvers" is entirely different from that of the high-priced cars. They are using very much less gasoline, because Saturday afternoons and Sundays are practically the only times when their owners can do any pleasure riding at all, but they save it at the expense of a reasonable recreation and relaxation of which both minds and bodies in these days of storm and stress stand sorely in need.

In these Autumn days especially, even if there were no epidemic in our midst, it is much to be regretted that our industrial population should have their innocent and health-giving enjoyment of the beauties of nature so seriously curtailed. With the Spanish influenza raging, the need and value of Sunday outings, as Governor McCall has pointed out, are immensely increased.

Let us hope that the Fuel Administration, having seen the force of these considerations and decided on a change of policy, will be able to put the new plan in operation before many more Autumn Sundays are lost. It would seem to be a simple matter to issue gasoline cards entitling the holder to purchase each week gasoline enough to run his car a reasonable distance, the quantity allowed being based upon the average mileage consumption of cars of that particular type. But if Mr. Garfield and his advisors decide that some less obvious solution is better we shall all be glad to try it out.

The saving of gasoline is an unquestionable war necessity, and none can doubt the administration's purpose that it shall be accomplished without any avoidable hardship, and without leaving any rankle of injustice behind.

Serious Situation Cited by "A Soldier's Wife"

The following letter from a soldier's wife brings home to us a serious situation:

Editor Boston American:

In regard to shipyard worker asking more money for the boys over there, it was a pleasure to read his view for the soldiers over there who have sacrificed everything near and dear to them in order to go forward to fight not only for their own loved ones, but for all who remain behind them, which a great many don't realize the hardships a soldier goes through in this terrible struggle to bring to all of us world victory.

Everywhere wages are raised to meet high cost of living, but do they consider what a soldier's family has to live on after his insurances, Liberty Bond and allowance for the ones back home? A soldier's pay averages from $30 to $50 a month, unless an officer. How would you like to be a soldier trying to exist on this income, while over here they are making high wages and small sacrifices?

A SOLDIER'S WIFE.

The soldier's family income is fixed and does not vary, like wages, more or less with the cost of living. The government must absolutely do something to stop the increase in the cost of food.

Fish has gone up 400 per cent. recently. There is no excuse for it. The government ought long ago to have limited the price of fish. What the influences are which continue to make the price of fish an exception to the policy of fixing maximum prices on the necessaries of life the AMERICAN does not understand. Surely the time has come and elapsed for the arbitrary reduction in the price of fish and in the price of all other of the necessaries of life.

The government has done wonderful work in fixing the maximum price of coal and flour and sugar. Let us fix a maximum price on meat and fish, and things will be very much better.

DEAR K. C. B.—The Red Cross tells us: "Give for the boys in France;" the Liberty Bond and W. S. S. posters say: "Back the Boys in France;" boxes everywhere read: "Drop a smoke for the boys in France," and never a word of the boys in Russia.

MY DEAR Mrs. Baxter.
I'M GLAD you wrote me.
BECAUSE FOR days.
I'VE WANTED to say something,
ABOUT THOSE American boys.
WHO HAVE crossed the Pacific.
AND ARE away over there.
OR AWAY up there.
HOWEVER YOU describe it.
IN A cold country.
WITH ONE line of railroad.
THAT FOR miles.
RUNS THROUGH a swamp.
AND WHO had to fight.
AS SOON as they got there.
AND WERE probably glad.
THAT SOMETHING happened.
TO MAKE them forget.
AND ONE of the reasons.
I WANTED to write.
ABOUT THE boys over there.
WAS A letter I got.
FROM KENNETH L. Roberts.
WHOSE NAME you have seen.
TACKED TO bits of verse.
AND KENNETH told me.
HE'D BEEN all excited.
ABOUT GOING to France.
AND ALL at once.
HE WAS hurried away.
IN THE other direction.
AND THE first thing he knew
HE WAS on a boat.
AND BOUND for Siberia.
AND NONE of his friends.
KNEW WHERE he was.
OR WHERE he was going.
AND THEY'D all suppose.
THAT HE'D gone to France.
AND IF they'd think of him.
THEY'D SEND their thoughts.
ACROSS THE Atlantic.
AND HE wouldn't get them.
AND AWAY out there.
WHEREVER IT was.
HE WAS going to.
HE'D BE all alone.
EXCEPT FOR the soldiers.
WHO'D GONE with him.
AND JUST for today.
I'M VERY glad.
TO GIVE my column.
TO THE Baxter boy.
FROM SAN Francisco.
AND THE Roberts boy.
AND THE other boys.
WHO WERE taken away.
BY THE back door route.
TO A terrible place.
THAT SEEMS far away.
AND THAT offers no thrill.
LIKE UNTO the thrill.
THAT A soldier feels.
WHEN HE lands in France.
BUT NEVERTHELESS.
THEY ARE soldiers all.
AND THEY'RE in our prayers.
WHEREVER THEY are.

I THANK you.

THE farmhouse nestles under trees
Aflame with Autumn's banner;
The farmer seems not quite at ease,
There's something in his manner
Denoting just a bit of doubt;
He coughs, he hems, he swallows,
Then turning earnest eyes on wife,
He speaks to her as follows:

"I figger out we'll hev enough
Ter buy two bonds, or nearly
When Cousin sends th' int'rest
That's comin' to us yearly;
Wot say? You'd ruther put the cash
In Savin's Bank, Eliza?
Shuck! 'taint a case of ruther
When yer dealin' with th' Kaiser.

"We live out here away from folks;
You hevn't seen th' doin's;
I heerd thet twenty went away
Las' week, ter face th' ruins;
They say th' people cheered like mad
An' I don't blame 'em, nuther;
Suppose we hed a little lad?
You know we did hev, Mother.

"An' if he'd lived until today,
He'd be—how old, Eliza?
I didn't mean ter make yer cry;
Gosh darn thet heathen Kaiser.
But if he was alive today
With war around, an' knew it.
Do you suppose—God bless you, Wife,
Of course, I knew you'd do it."

STUDYING ON THE MORNING TRIP

Copyright, 1918, by International Feature Service, Inc.

As a commuter, has the fact ever suggested itself to you that you might become well versed in some important subject or subjects if you used the time you spend riding back and forth in studying regularly and systematically?

You will not be so annoyed by what has seemed to you a tiresome ride if you plan and carry out this idea.

For years you have wished for time to take up a certain line of study. Here is your great opportunity.

Supposing you spend two hours a day on trains, don't you think that you can put that twelve hours a week to good use this way?

Of course you can. You would be surprised to know how much may be learned in one year using just this spare time you are forced to take riding to and from your work.

Say it requires two years' time to fit yourself for a position which means five dollars more each week, isn't it worth it?

Get to work on this study plan and you will not only add enjoyment to otherwise monotonous trips, but find it a valuable investment.

HOW COAL WAS MADE IN OUR EARTH

By Garrett P. Serviss

(1) Did the world grow since the carboniferous age? Or, are the present coal mines buried because they sank and not because they were buried by the earth's growth?

(2) What force produces the revolution of the earth, and what would be the result if its revolution ceased?

R. S. LAZZONEE.

THERE is no growth of the earth in the sense in which you use the expression. It is true that very, very slowly, the globe's mass and bulk probably increase through the accession of meteoric matter falling from interplanetary space, but this increase could never, since the stratified rocks were laid down, have been sufficient to account for the burying of deposits under hundreds of thousands of feet of superposed layers. Indeed, it is more likely that the earth is shrinking instead of growing, the contraction caused by internal cooling exceeding the expansion due to addition of extraneous matter at the surface.

Why They Are Buried

The burial of the coal beds was the result of several combined causes. The relative depression of the areas in which the remains of the coal-producing plants were deposited caused the formation of shallow seas or lakes there, and by the deposition at the bottom of the water of great quantities of clay, sand, gravel and other detritus, washed from the surrounding land, the fallen vegetation was deeply covered and packed down.

Then, in the course of subsequent ages, as the land rose again, through the effect of broad undulations of the earth's crust, the water was drained off, and the deposits that it had left were hardened into layers of rock.

This is a simplified outline of the process by which the coal beds were buried, for in many places there were repeated risings and sinkings of the crust, with attendant invasions and retreats of the water, which resulted in the formation of a series of overlying strata of rocks. From this you see that the crust, or rocky shell, of the earth "grows" only temporarily and in limited locations, some parts sinking, while others rise.

The seas, rushing in to fill, for a time, the relatively sunken areas, leave subaqueous deposits that thicken the crust at those points at the expense of other areas which furnish the alluvial material brought down by the waters. You must not, however, imagine this process to be so extensive as to cause the great oceans and continents to change places. It has altered the outlines and the interior topography of the continents, but as a whole they have maintained their places from a time so remote that the record of geology "runneth not to the contrary."

Scientific Theories

(2) There is no force now active in the revolution of the earth, except the gravitation of the sun, which causes the earth to travel with a continually changing, though upon a slightly elliptical orbit, which has the sun in one of its foci. How the earth originally obtained the motion that it has across the direction of the sun's pull we do not know (although it was probably a result of the general rotation of the nebula from which the solar system developed), but, at the present time the only force required to keep the earth going as it does is the solar attraction.

But perhaps you mean by the "revolution of the earth" its rotation upon its own axis. In that case, since the velocity of the rotation is uniform, or so nearly uniform that no measurable change has been detected in thousands of years, no active force is needed to maintain the rotation. There being no resistance to overcome, the spinning of the earth goes on without the expenditure of force.

The Great Fire in Europe. Smaller Fire in Milwaukee. The Female Reporter's Story.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

The war in Europe is like a great fire and Woodrow Wilson is the fireman, directing the fight against the flames that threaten to burn up civilization.

The world has confidence, absolute, in his wisdom and waits for the word from him, "The fire is out."

You will read in this newspaper its answer to Germany's answer: "You must stop your killing at sea, your killing and destroying on land. Time enough to talk about an armistice when you shall have abandoned that which caused the war."

As the above was written at 7 o'clock last night in the editorial office of the Evening Wisconsin, a fine old Milwaukee newspaper, just purchased by this writer, a printer staying late, came in to say that the middle of Milwaukee seemed to be on fire. An edition has just been sent to press, describing the great forest fires in Minnesota. It seemed to be a day of fires.

Through the window were visible buildings burning down, flames rising hundreds of feet into the air.

Reporters, stereotypers, printers, pressmen were sent for. On one side of the fire the building of the Milwaukee Free Press was scorched and threatened, the workers driven out.

On the other side of the fire the great building of Charles Pfister's newspaper, the Milwaukee Sentinal, was burning, the outer walls falling to the ground.

The fire tugs from the river were throwing into the streets and against the buildings streams of water that would wash away anybody struck. It was impossible to get near the fire because of the terrific heat, and it was absolutely necessary to get out an extra of the Evening Wisconsin, which had just started under new ownership.

In walked two young ladies, cool as though they had just left a soda water fountain.

One young lady said: "My name is Mrs. Ann McMurdy, Mr. Brisbane. I work on your newspaper. This is my friend, Miss Polly Parsons, who writes movie stories and such things for the Sentinel. Her real name is Helen Ryan. She has just come down the fire escape out of the Sentinel Building. I caught her and brought her over here to tell you about the fire for your extra."

Up spoke Polly Parsons. She had a little note book in one hand, her pencil in the other. Her white kid shoes were blackened with smoke and ashes. Her hat was on straight.

Now she speaks: "Listen. We can't get out any Sentinel tomorrow morning because we are burned out, so I might as well give you the news for your extra.

"You know, I write movie stories and I have enough excitement. About twenty minutes ago over in the Sentinel Building I was writing a story on the influenza—I'm versatile and write about everything. I began to smell smoke and choke and felt the heat, and I said to myself, 'You've got the flu!' But I hadn't. There was a perfectly terrible fire outside and I hadn't noticed it because I was trying to write the story of my life. I believe that's the only way to get on in the world. Always put your best into every story.

"Well, the firemen were throwing streams of water into the building, the floor above us was burning. So they said, 'Get your hat and coat and get out,' and I got out down the fire escape. I wouldn't have made a bad movie at that."

Then the young lady with accurate detail told just where the fire started in Heinemann's wholesale millinery establishment on Broadway. And it had burned down already the Kurier Polski, a Polish newspaper next door. At that moment it was burning the Free Press, morning newspaper, on one side, and the Sentinel, evening and morning newspaper, on the other. Mrs. Ann McMurdy, the Evening Wisconsin reporter, said to the friend whom she had chaperoned in, "You must be all worn out, dearest; come home."

"I am not worn out at all," said Polly Parsons, alias Ryan, "but I have an appointment, so good-night. I see the fire is under control. I have seen enough of them.

"If I do say it myself, my father is Captain Barth Ryan, captain of No. 4 Truck Company. Nobody ever gets to a fire ahead of him. He can put out any fire, and I will say, if I do slang, that he is some fireman. Good-night again."

Polly Parsons is gone, chaperoned all the way by Mrs. Ann McGurdy, who in the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin tomorrow will tell you how the fire looked to her.

This story shows first that the young American woman has presence of mind and makes a good reporter.

Second, that newspaper life is never completely dull.

To buy an evening newspaper in Milwaukee, start at 5 o'clock in the morning to get out your first edition on Monday, October 14th, which was yesterday, and have three competitors, two English and one Polish, burn out that night, makes up a busy day.

As this is written at 8 p. m., the extra edition of the Evening Wisconsin is on the street, with a Polly Parsons story. Sixty newsboys gathered from invisible space by Annenberg, the business manager, are yelling the news to all Milwaukee.

If you want your son to have an existence free of monotony make him a newspaperman.
